Polls open Tuesday for County runoff

Tension continues to mount as Nevada and Placer County voters prepare to go to the polls Tuesday to cast their votes for candidates for 31 major elective offices in the two counties.

In some cases the primary elections could decide who goes into office, but other contests will probably be run off in the Nov. 3 general election.

If one candidate receives more than half of the votes cast in competition between three or more candidates he will be elected to that office. If only two compete in the primary, the one receiving the most votes wins.

Assessor, $14,532; auditor, $10,820; clerk–recorder, $13,–176; district attorney, $20,000; justice court judges of Grass Valley, Nevada City and Truckee judicial districts, $9,600; Superior Court judge, $31,815; supervisors of districts three and four, $6,000; public administrator, $2,400; sheriff–coroner, $16,835; and treasurer–tax collector, $13,176.

Placer County offices to be filled and salaries for each are:

Assessor, $16,756; auditor, $15,000; clerk–recorder, $13,–656; district attorney and public administrator, $20,500; sheriff coroner, $17,364; treasurer–tax collector, $13,656; district one and two supervisors, $8,200; Superior Court judge, $31,815; Auburn district judge, $9,000; Colfax district judge, $12,000; Foresthill district judge, $9,–000; Lincoln district judge, $6,–800; Loomis district judge, $9,–000; Roseville district judge, $9,000; and Tahoe District judge, $7,500.

In recent years the California Legislature has strengthened qualifications for the office of county auditor. However, legislation governing these changes, and other legislation affecting justice court judges contains a "grandfather clause" which excuses incumbents from abiding by the changes if they held office before the changes became law. This means those holding office before that time may run for office under the old rules.

County auditor candidates should have a valid certificate issued by the California State Board of Accountancy showing the candidate to be a certified public accountant or a public accountant, and the candidate must possess a permit authorizing him to practice in these fields.

In lieu of the above qualifications, the prospective candidate must have a valid diploma of graduation from a school of accountancy, or have served as county or deputy county auditor for a continuous period of not less than three years.

Those aspiring to be justice court judges (with the exeption of those incumbents serving before certain laws were enacted) must be attorneys admitted to practice before the state Supreme Court; or must have passed a qualifying examination prescribed by the State Judicial Council within four years of their appointment or election.

All candidates must be registered voters within the county and meet certain residential requirements.

For instance, a Superior Court Judge must have had five years residency in the state prior to election. He must have been admitted to practice before the California Supreme Court and be a member of the State Bar, or have served as a judge of a court of record in the state. He must have practiced law for 10 years.

County superintendent of schools candidates are required to present school administration credentials before taking out nomination papers for the position.

Superior Court and justice court judges and district attorney are required to pay fees equal to one per cent of the annual salaries of the respective offices when they take out nomination papers. Most others pay two per cent of the annual salaries.

Superior Court judge: Otis Babcock, William Hager, Dean Lawrence, Leo Todd, and Harry Wolters.

Supervisor, third district: Robert Long, incumbent; Robert H. Partington, and Bert See.

Sheriff: Wayne Brown, incumbent; Jerry Berryman.

Public administrator: Albert Ahearn, incumbent; James G. Else, and Jonie Reed.

Truckee Justice Court judge: Fosten Wilson, incumbent; Arthur L. Kennerson, and Schyler (Sky) Miles.

Seven Nevada County officials are running unopposed, and barring any unexpected write–in campaigns are assured of reelection to new four year terms.

The seven who didn't draw any opposition are:

Assessor Elton (Bub) Tobiassen, Clerk–recorder Theodore Kohler, District Attorney

Donner Park open immediately

The State of California will open Donner Memorial State Park and campground this weekend as scheduled, according to Dick Johnston, area manager for the California Department of Parks and Recreation.

"We will operate on our existing septic tanks temporarily until we are able to hook up to the sewer system," Johnston reported Tuesday. "Meanwhile, state engineers are at work this week laying out pipelines for sewer hookup as soon as possible."

Harold Berliner, district attorney for Nevada County, last week told the state to stop polluting Donner Lake with their public restroom facilities in the park or close up. The notice gave the state until June 3 to hook up to the existing Truckee Sanitary District sewer lines at the park boundary, to take other measures that would prevent sewage effluent from entering Donner Lake, or suffer legal consequences.

Last week Johnston had indicated that the state would take some definite action concerning the abatement order. He said the state would either rush its hookup to the sewer system or the park would stay closed.

Johnston said the state had funds allocated for sewering the park but that the work had been scheduled for next year.

"Actually, our septic tanks are totally adequate," Johnston said yesterday. "They recently passed inspection and we know they are operating properly."

The park maintains sanitary facilities for 154 campsites, a daytime picnic area, several homes for park personnel, and the Pioneer Museum.

Johnston said that until Tuesday morning he was working toward two goals, having the park ready to open for Memorial Day weekend or closing it down entirely for the summer.

'I didn't know which way we were going to go," Johnston said. "I had to be ready for either eventuality. I wanted to get the park opened this weekend and I'm glad that was the decision. We'll have a full house this weekend and from the middle of June on through Labor Day."

Planners concerned over Spooner mess

Tahoe Regional Planning Agency members have voiced concern over the "mess" following the laying of a force main sewer line through Spooner Meadow near the junction of highways 28 and 50 in Nevada.

Planning consultant Ray Smith recommended that the area be cleaned and the stream bed reestablished to its natural condition. Agency members agreed and will ask Incline Village General Improvement District to do the work.

Placer County Supervisors and TRPA member William Briner asked for and received the agency's help in efforts to have state bureaucrats in Sacramento release $475,000 in funds previously authorized for the acquisition of 450 feet of shoreline at the foot of Coon Street in Kings Beach.

Part of the money would be used for a boat launching ramp and picnic facilities. Briner said the county would like to have some type of wave suppressor or breakwater near the site. Until one can be developed that will not endanger lake ecology or water quality the project will be deferred indefinitely.

He said the county already owns 200 feet of beach frontage at the site and is negotiating with private landowners for donation of another 200 feet, hopefully bringing the total beach lands to nearly 900 feet of frontage.

In other action, the TRPA:

- Approved in principle the efforts of a tri-district agreement to lay sewer lines in the unsewered portions of Douglas County. The three parties to the agreement - Kingsbury General Improvement District, Elk Point Sanitation District, and Tahoe Douglas District - will negotiate with South Tahoe Public Utility District or Douglas County Sewer Improvement District No. 1 for treatment of the effluent.
- Approved Forest Service Sewer System, Stage 3. South Tahoe Public Utility District will install approximately 38,–000 linear feet of sewers at Camp Richardson, Fallen Leaf Campground.
- Approved a 2.364 acre site for an El Dorado County corporation yard at Meyers. It will include a 6,000-square-foot shop and paved area.
- Approved rezoning a 1.14-acre area along Black Bart Road near Lake Christopher from Agricultural to Single-Family Residential. The area is surrounded by land zoned for the latter use.
- Decided that beginning in July, the agency will meet the fourth Wednesday of each month.
- Noted that the Advisory Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on the interim plan June 3 at South Tahoe Public Utility District offices. The agency must, by law, adopt an interim plan by June 18, less than a month from now.
- Decided that from now on the California and bi - state agencies will meet concurrently. Previously, the California planning body met following the morning session of the TRPA. This has resulted in procedural delays for some projects. Agency members decided on the new procedure upon advice from Mel Beverly, South Lake Tahoe attorney and former executive director of the California agency.

Announcement causes local controversy

An announcement recently by the Federal Aviation Administraion of an investigation concerning the application of Radio Station KTRT in Truckee to build a new radio antenna near Truckee-Tahoe Airport has caused speculation and some controversy locally among radio people and the airport district board of directors.

Herb Crenshaw, manager of the broadcast facility, has applied to the Federal Communications Commission for permission to build an antenna tower near Highway 267 south of the airport between Martis Valley and Brockway Summit. FCC approval is contingent upon FAA approval.

The FAA contended that the proposed tower would exceed height standards by about 200 feet. The location is 12,850 feet from the end of runway 28, and the FAA said that its study will "determine what effect it (the tower) will have on the safe and efficient use of navigable air space and the operation of air navigation facilities."

Crenshaw said that his new tower has been approved by Placer County Planning Commission and that site selection was made with full knowledge of local airport officials. "Our move to establish this location was at all times coordinated with the airport district," Crenshaw said.

Gordon Reddall, manager of Truckee - Tahoe Airport District, said that while the district was aware of Crenshaw's plans to erect a tower in the vicinity, the FAA's plans to establish a new ruling which would extend their jurisdiction in airport areas would require the local district to reexamine Crenshaw's application.

"The proposed ruling by FAA will expand the airport area to include the site of this tower," Reddall said. "We have consulted with the FAA, the Civil Aeronautics Board, and with KTRT management. The FAA had planned to rule on the radio station's application after May 29 but the district has asked them to defer their decision until after our June 2 board

German measle clinic for bi-county area

Placer and Nevada County public health officials have announced a clinic to be held noon to 3 p.m. June 7 to administer German, or three-day measle, vaccine to children ages one to 12.

Dubbed "Rubella Sunday" by health department officials, the vaccinations will be given at the following locations:

Auburn, Placer County Health Department; Roseville, Roseville High School; Lincoln, Lincoln High School; Colfax, Veterans Memorial Hall; Grass Valley, Lyman-Gilmore School; Truckee, Truckee Elementary School; and Tahoe City, Tahoe Lake School.

Rubella is usually a mild, easily treatable disease. However, when it attacks women during pregnancy, its effect on their unborn children is often tragic. In addition to miscarriages and infant deaths, it can cause blindness, deafness, brain damage and malformations of the heart, bone and liver. Infants and young school children - from kindergarten through the sixth grade - are the most common spreaders of the disease. Mass Immunization of children is by far the most effective way of achieving results to prevent another epidemic.

Reasons why a child should not have the Rubella immunization include sensitivity to chicken and duck (including eggs and feathers) or neomycin; any respiratory illness or infection (postpone until the patient recovers;) malignancies, steroid therapy, irradiation, alkylating agents or antimetabolites.

FAA gives nod for local flights

Once again residents of the Greater North Lake Tahoe community will keep their collective fingers crossed and hope for the best as Holiday Airlines receives FAA approval to begin scheduled service at Truckee-Tahoe Airport.

This move by Holiday represents approximately the fifth effort to establish scheduled air service in the locality, the others having failed economically. The most recent was Skymark Airline, which for a period last year provided connections via Twin Otter aircraft to South Lake Tahoe and Sacramento. Air Nevada, another local carrier, has never provided scheduled service.

Holiday operates four-engine Lockheed Electra equipment between South Lake Tahoe and the Bay Area and Southern California. Tentatively, Holiday will bring one flight per day into Truckee commencing July 1, presumably an extension of one of its flights into South Lake Tahoe. The fare schedule has not been announced, nor has the timetable.

Gordon Reddall, manager of Truckee-Tahoe Airport District, said the airline would rent space in the terminal building and install a ticket counter, telephone and teletype service, and man the office with airline personnel.

Tests are to be conducted at the airport to determine if the Electras can operate fully loaded with passengers and fuel. Gross weight of the aircraft is 95,000 pounds. The airport has been approved to 90,000 pounds. The number of passengers which the airline is subsequently allowed to carry on flights into Truckee will determine the fare schedule.

Tapia names aide

Tom Bennett, a 24-year-old navy veteran, has been named to head the Truckee Donner Recreation and Park District's summer recreation program, Dr. Henry Tapia, manager of the district announced last week.

Bennett, who is a graduate of Oakland High School and Merritt Junior College, both in Oakland, has worked in the recreation field for the past six years

Discharged from the navy this year, Bennett is a qualified water safety instructor, and represented the navy in Japan in the 1967 Red Cross International Lifesaving Championships, placing third in one event. He also played basketball for the navy varsity team in Japan.

Hired for the summer only, the new recreation director plans to continue his education this fall at California State College, Hayward, and then transfer to University of California at Davis where he will major in electrical engineering.

Bennett is the son of Mrs. Evelyn A. Bennett, 29 Woodcrest Circle, Oakland.

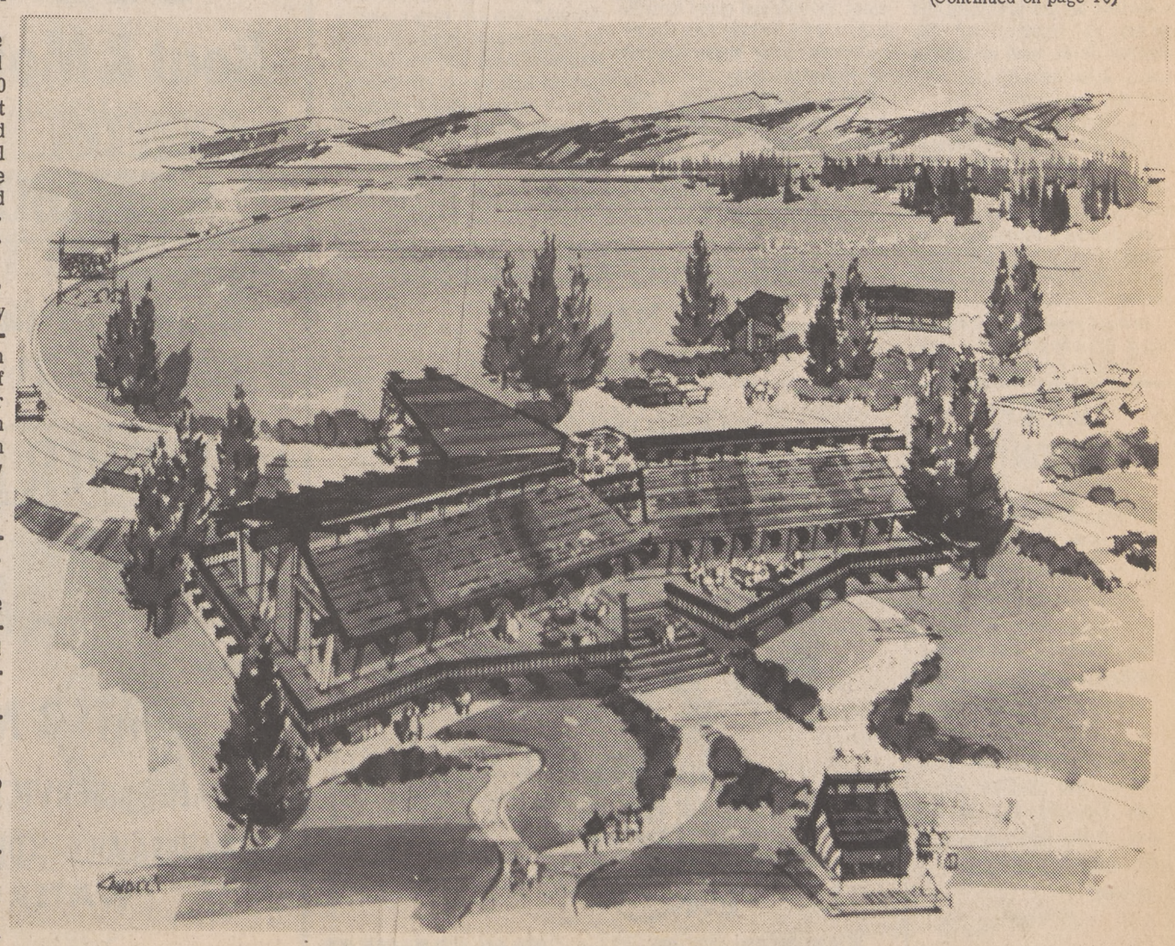
1970 census reminder

Officials for the 1970 census have urged any persons in the Donner-Truckee area who has been inadvertently missed in the census pickup to deposit their census forms in a special census envelope which will be at the Truckee Post Office until June 2.



NEW INN PLANNED FOR TRUCKEE - Golden Empire Lodge, a 50-unit motel complex featuring a restaurant, coffee shop, cocktail lounge, and swimming pool, is planned for early construction at Truckee-Tahoe Airport in the Martis Valley. Owners of the new inn will be Golden Empire Aviation, the airport's fixed base operator. Construction is expected to commence in a few weeks with completion scheduled for the fall.

The editor's letter box

After reading page seven of your May 8 edition relating to Star Harbor Conservation, my thoughts were that perhaps these developers invoke another meaning to the word. From observation of this huge dredging project from the beginning, my conclusions are that Star Harbor is a prime example of what man and millions can do to destroy the natural beauty of Lake Tahoe.

It will take nature a hundred years to erase this mess. The entire meadow that was filled with wildlife is covered over in excess of four feet of mud. The tributaries of Burton Creek that spawned the trout in the spring and fall no longer exist. The mating ducks find nothing there to protect them and no longer inhabit. The muskrat and beaver have been annihilated. The lake for a square mile is turning greener each day from the nutrients washing in from this extensive dredging project.

It will take more than the studying of a course or two by the developers to rectify their mistake in interupting this balance of nature. Really it is too late Mr. Star Harbor developer! Admittedly, your five-year study course may help prevent this error from occuring in the future in the areas where streams enter the lake. The condoninium development on the shoreline is a man-made eyesore similiar to those lining the precipitous cliffs of Crystal Bay.

For man's ego to be so great as to believe that he can improve the Creators beauty of Tahoe is unbelievable. It appears there is no hope for the preservation of the beauty of Tahoe. The planners do not comprehend as was indicated again in the front page article which boasted of the recent approval of the destruction of the oxygen producing forests by Fiberboard. The elimate will change again and more nutrients will pour into the lake.

Relating the Star Harbor, Mr. Collins refers to "political pressures" halting more damage, it was these same pressures that made his development possible in the first instance. Originally, this development was turned down by one committee concerned with the natural beauty of the lake. Mr. Collins states that he transplanted a hundred aspen trees. Does this erase the memory of the thousand or so previously there and their fall color beauty? The willows and green meadow and wildflowers are gone. Can he truly be proud of this work?

Regardless of how this development has been disguised as an improvement, it can be only be a scheme for financial gain. What other purpose could there be? We who have seen this lake since the twenties are sad in viewing this devestation. If political pressures can be reversed to stop this destruction along the shoreline, the streams, and the meadows with an eye toward protecting the wildlife, this is good! Again as Bryon so aptly put it," Man marks the earth with ruin."

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letter was written to President Richard M. Nixon last October by Max Hoff, a Homewood realtor. Hoff gave this copy to the Sun this week, noting that "It is obvious he (the president) did not take my 'advice,' and the situation is at least as critical now as it was then.")

Dear Mr. President:

As a lifelong Republican, who shared your agonies in defeat in 1960, and again in 1962, and lived to share your hopes and ultimate victory in 1968, I feel that I have earned the right to be considered your friend, and therefore entitled to offer you some advice.

You must know, Mr. President, that it is very late in the game . . . too late for your conservative tactics. Granted, this Vietnam "war" was not your war. But you were elected to pinch hit. It is now your ball game. I do not believe your instructions were to lay down a bunt.

If this were in the early innings of 1966 or even 1967, going for one run at a time would have been good strategy, and you would enjoy the cheers of the great majority of the American people, if not the entire world. But at this point in time you cannot afford this luxury, you have just got to go for the big inning.

You stated that you do not intend to suffer a defeat in Vietnam. I submit to you that a defeat is not necessary.

Please take a good look at your options, Mr. President. At one extreme, you can go all out and no doubt achieve a military victory very quickly, and leave both North and South Vietnam in rubble. On the other hand, you can order all American military out of Vietnam immediately, thus suffering the "defeat" you and your predecessor seem to fear, and probably cause the early collapse of the existing government (?) in South Vietnam.

Or you can continue the seemingly safer middle course you now appear to be taking, one which will get us out of the mess eventually. But at what cost, Mr. President. Tens of thousands of our kids killed and maimed, for sure. And if it takes another couple of years you must know you will go down the tube just as surely as Mr. Johnson did before you. But of infinitely more importance, we are in great danger of losing an entire generation, the brightest and potentially the greatest generation in our history, idealistic kids who refuse to fit into the groove we have shaped for them but may wind up instead in the much deeper rut of dispair.

I propose that you announce to the world that we are not going to make that sacrifice, either to save a South Vietnam as we would like it, or to salve our wounded pride. We must go all out for a military victory, or pull out.

We know, and the world knows, that we could destroy Vietnam overnight if that was our intent, but we are not a country of Hitlers. We do not kill a people just because they may not look or think as we do.

So for purely humanitarian reasons we are now going to stop the killings, so far as it is in our power to do so, withdraw our troops from the battle areas, and bring them home as rapidly as their safety permits.

I submit, Mr. President, that this is above defeat. We Americans, more particularly you as our leader, now have this opportunity to take a giant step toward the peace of everyone's dreams. You might even be the first Quaker to become a latter day Saint.

Now, Mr. President, NOW. Next inning may be too late.

Respectfully yours,
MAX E. HOFF

The 3rd Annual Truckee Tahoe Girl Scout neighborhood camporee last weekend at Sugar Pine Point was a tremendous success. More than 200 Brownie, Juniors, Cadettes, and adult volunteers attended. Everyone had a great time.

The success of an activity like the camporee is dependent upon many factors and many individuals. I wish to take this opportunity to make these special acknowledgements:

THE WEATHERMAN who came through with a weekend of perfect weather.

MR. ELKINS of the Sugar Pine Point State Park staff, who has remained patient and helpful during this annual girl scout invasion.

MARY ANN BURT and ROXANNA SHAHEEN who did a splendid job as the Camporee Co-Chairmen.

ALL LEADERS, ASSISTANTS, and MOTHERS (and at least one father) who gave their time and effort to supervise the girls during Camporee; and their families who got along without them.

BARBARA KEARNS, neighborhood outdoor skills coordinator, who made it possible for leaders to survive a weekend of troop camping.

ROBERTA HUBER who has brought along her family for the third consecutive year so that she could act as Camporee nurse.

HELEN GATES, a mother who cared enough to take complete charge of a brownie troop by herself when the leader was called out of town by an unexpected emergency.

MISS MARILYN PUGH, a young teacher, who made it possible for a Cadette troop to plan and attend Camporee when the leader was unable.

ELLA DOLLEY, a former leader who came out of retirement to organize and supervise the Camporee trip for a junior troop leader.

MISS CATHY NELSON, a high school student, who spent her weekend acting as an aide to the leaders of a large Junior troop.

ALL MOTHERS AND FATHERS who helped to transport girls, supplies and gear back and forth to Sugar Pine.

MANY LOCAL BUSINESSES which gave the troops discounts on Camporee supplies.

THE SIERRA NEVADA GIRL SCOUT COUNCIL which loaned camping equipment and provided leadership training.

EVERYONE who has bought girl scout calendars and girl scout cookies, the profits from which help to provide council equipment and training, and help to defray some troop expenses.

COMMUNITY ORGANIZATIONS which have purchased camping gear and program supplies for troops they sponsor.

MURIEL WISER who laid the foundation for continued success when she coordinated the Camporee two previous years.

GERDA GODON, who was our neighbor chairman until her death two years ago. She encourged the leaders in our neighborhood to plan and hold the first Camporee so that girl scouts in this area might benefit from the experience of a weekend in the out-of-doors with their troops. She strengthened the organization of the neighborhood, taught us skills, gave us confidence in our ability as girl scout leaders, and gave us a spiritual sense of what girl scouting is all about. For those of us who knew and loved Gerda, the annual Truckee Tahoe Camporee is a continuing and growing tribute to her inspiring leadership.

EDITOR, SIERRA SUN:

President Nixon's decision to send American troops into Cambodia has had far-reaching consequences. One of them was the creation of the Northern California Community Project on the Berkeley campus of the University of California.

This project is composed of students who are very concerned about recent developments in Southeast Asia and who believe that the best way to end the war there is to tap the greatest strength of this county - the people.

Like the other groups of students which have gone to various Northern California towns, we have come to Truckee to exchange ideas with the people of the community. We hope to present information on (1) the nature of America's war commitments, (2) the moral and economic impact of these commitments on the citizens of this country, and (3) how we as citizens can help stop the war.

However, we are prepared not only to talk, but to listen. We do not claim to have all the facts; so we expect to learn much from you, too. To do this, we want to reach as many people as possible. We will be ringing doorbells, taking an opinion poll, conducting a coffee hour for informal discussion, and other activities.

A coffee hour will be held this Sunday, May 31, at the Methodist Church in Truckee at noon.

At present, there is much misunderstanding between students on the campuses and townspeople. In our visits to Truckee in the next few weeks we hope to bridge that misunderstanding, for only by working together can the people of America hope to solve its problems. We students believe that American is a great country, but we also believe that with a few needed changes it can be an even greater one.

EDITOR, SIERRA SUN:

On June 2, 1970, the Citizens of the Truckee area, will be going to the polls to decide on a number of issues, some of which are of primary importance to those of us living in this community. First and foremost are the offices now being contested - the office of Judge and the office of sheriff.

During the past years a large number of our local citizenry have been subjected to a number of abusive embarrassing situations that were a clear-cut violation of our civil and Constitutional rights. Initally the acts were perpetrated by the local sheriff's office and then compounded by an act of the Court. Each and every case was the result of a rumor or hearsay evidence which our local constabulary thought was sufficient to act upon.

In most cases it was the young person who was intimidated by the sheer force of numbers and then held incommunicado until the obvious became obvious and the SUSPECT was released, a great deal worse for the wear and having a distinct, odius taste for what He or She used to refer to as our LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS.

The heads of departments that know these and many more situations exist and stand by and condone their departments actions, obviously know as little about what they are doing as do their subordinates.

Well, as previously stated, June 2 is rapidly approaching and the voting citizen in our area has the opportunity to turn out these people and install people of genuine, honesty and integrity, who aspire to these positions because they truly care. The monetary rewards for these jobs are hardly attractive enough to attract the challenger, so it must be that the people asking you to elect them want a judical and law enforcement agency you can RESPECT, knowing that the job will be done to the SATISFACTION of ALL.

We were promised an upgrading of law enforcement two years ago during an election for Supervisor of the Fifth District: We got a new lieutenant in the sheriff's substation in Truckee. Here is real progress. We now have a lieutenant in charge, Butttt - THE CONDITIONS REMAIN UNCHANGED.

These remarks are not presented to you, the reader, simply to degrade those we mention in the above. They are to remind you THE VOTERS. The question you must ponder is: do we want to continue on under these DEPLORABLE CONDITIONS or do you want to elect a whole new administration? One that will serve you Mr. John Q. Public.

It is therefore URGENT that each of us go to the polls and vote these candidates into office. Restore our civil and Constitutional rights to our local court and law enforcement agencys. Be concerned over the political machine that has us in their grip. VOTE.

FDA demotes man who questioned bureaucrats

The Food and Drug Administration has quietly demoted the man who accused some agency bureaucrats of altering laboratory conclusions which cast doubt on established FDA regulatory policy.

FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards reorganized a pathology unit last week making Dr. Howard L. Richardson the acting number 2 man in a new patholoby division. Richardson had been the FDA's chief pathologist since 1968.

Edwards installed Dr. Bert J. Vos as acting head of the pathology division, according to an FDA memorandum dated May 19. Vos, a longtime agency official, is a medical doctor but not a pathologist.

However, a leading pathologist from the government's National Cancer Institute is in line for the job on a permanent basis, an FDA spokesman emphasized.

Richardson was brought in to revitalize FDA pathology in part because of a reputation he gained in the Veterans Administration as a hard-nosed scrapper committed to scientific integrity, knowledgeable FDA officials say.

FDA memoranda show that Richardson has ranked longtime agency officials during the past year and a half with insistent demands for upgrading pathology in the agency. Pathology is the branch of medicine dealing with the causes of tissue injury and death.

A memorandum written by Richardson Oct. 20, 1969, as a subject of later news stories increased tensions within the troubled agency.

Richardson charged that bureaucrats with limited scientific training expunged conclusions and recommendations from reports of certain animal experiments. The experiments in question appeared to contradict official agency positions.

'Clothes make the man' But what about a hat

There's an old Irish drinking song about a man who misplaces his hat in a pub and tipsily declares, "I had a hat when I came in, and I'll have a hat when I go out!" Well, there were hats enough to go around Friday at Tahoe Truckee High's Sadie Hawkins Day, and quite a few were probably misplaced.

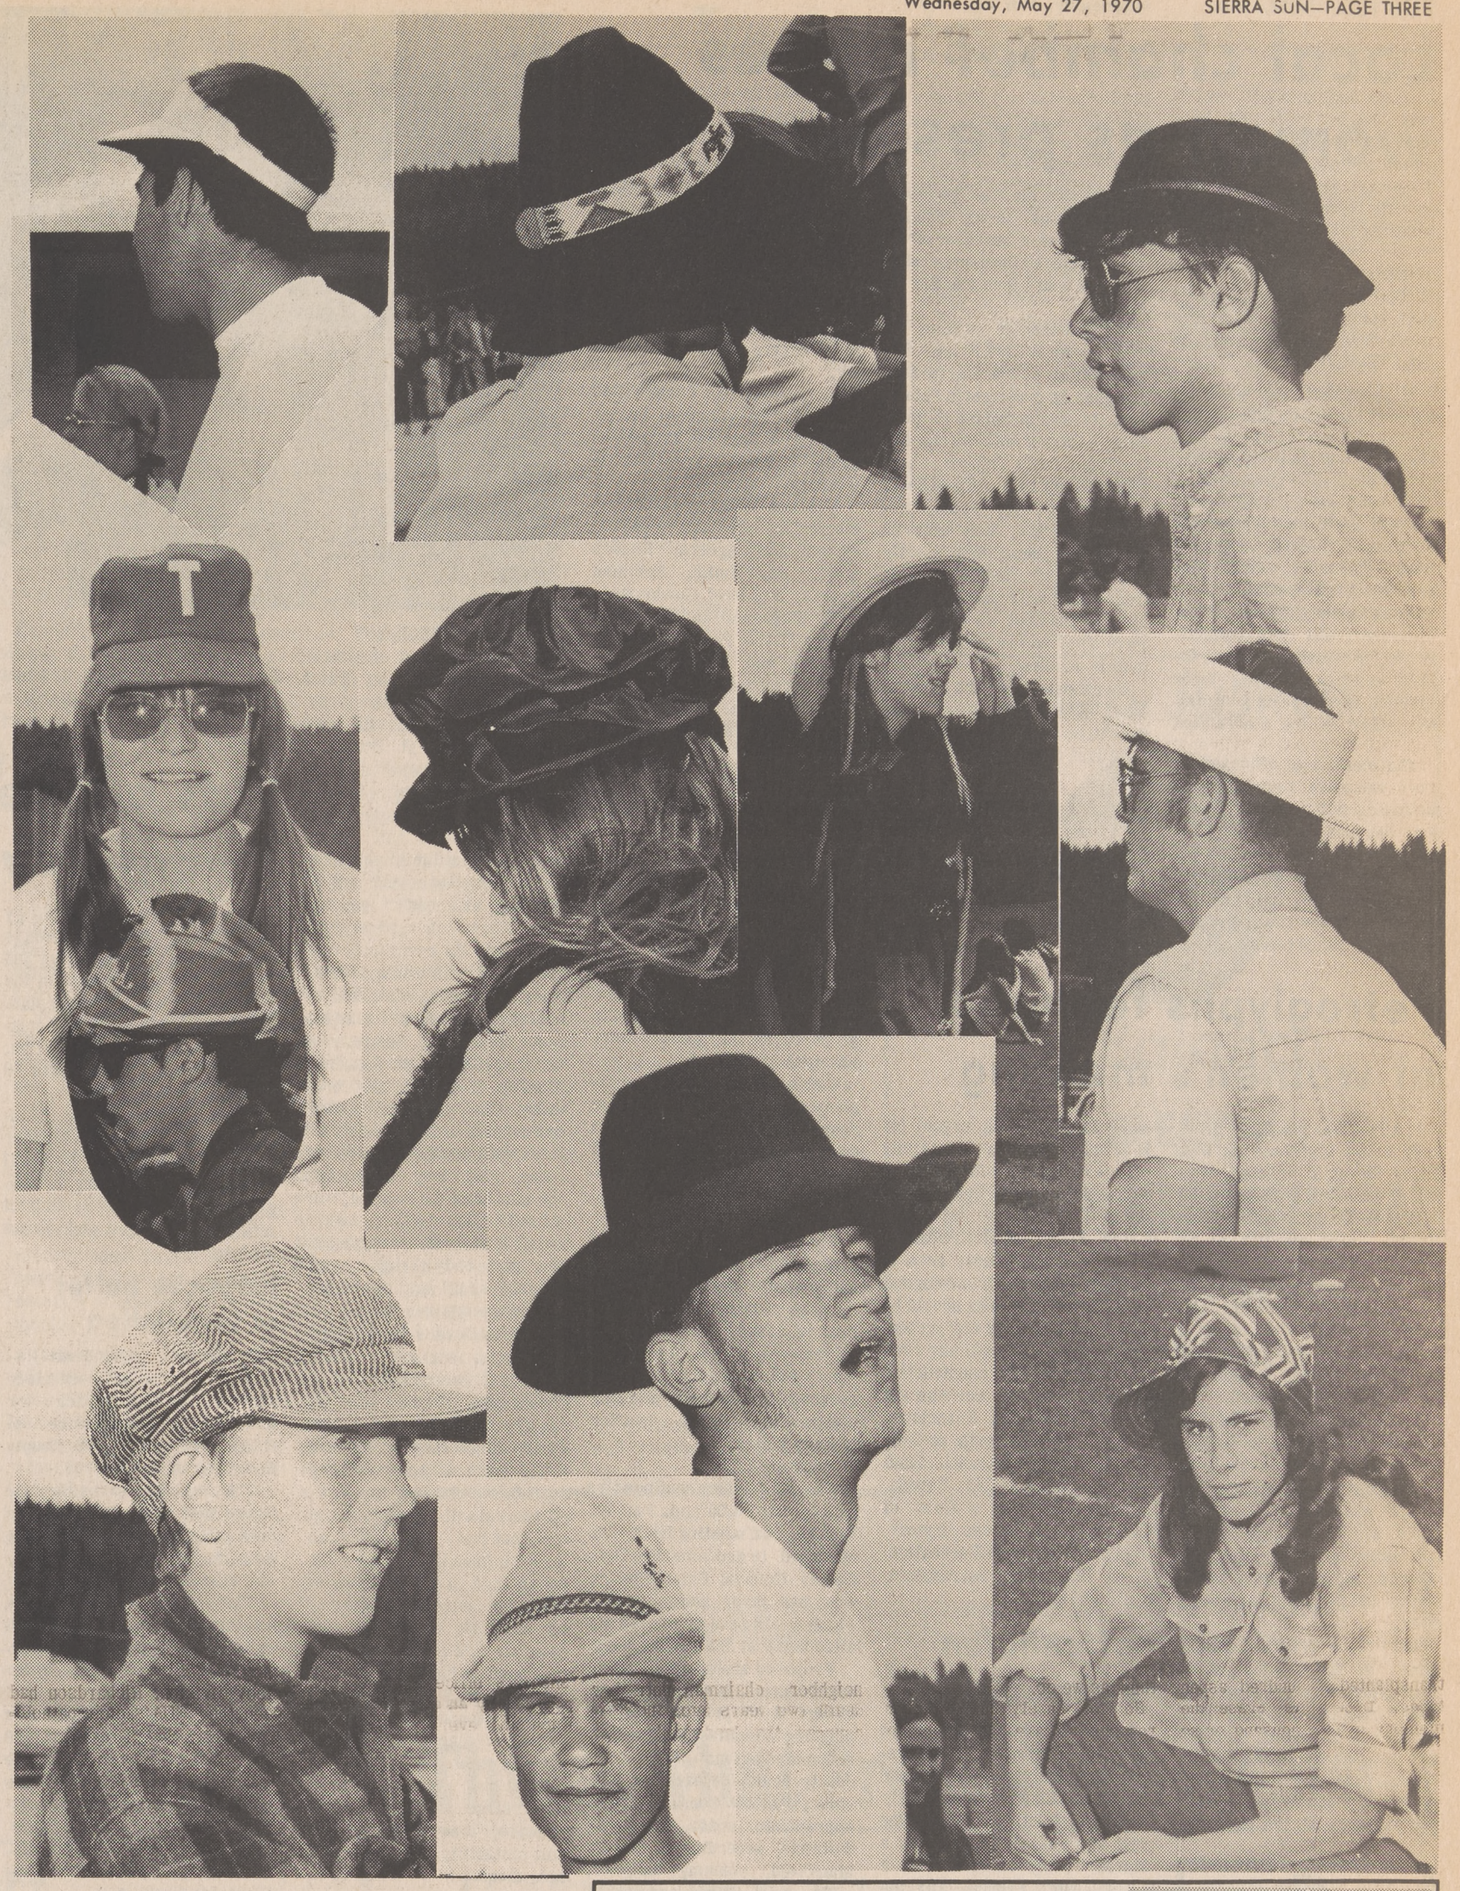
Back on the subject of hats, which this is all about, there seems to be a hat of some shape, color or variety to meet any possible need (or quirk of taste.)

There are firmen's hats, football helmets, ski hats, ball caps, turbans, sombreros, and rain hats - just to name a few of those designed to be functional.

However, with hat in hand, one must admit that there are many which merely satisfy the criteria of style, decor and culture. While women are constantly chided about hats, both sexes are guilty of donning toppers in the "useless" category such as bonnets, pillboxes, floppy widebrims, fezzes, straw hats, bowlers, derbys, forage caps, beavers, nightcaps, skullcaps, panamas, tam-o'shanters, berets, hombergs, top hats, and thin-brimmed man about town hats.

What this all boils down to is that people are just mad about hats. And hatters are undeniably mad - all going back to the fact that many 18th century English hatters suffered brain damage from chemicals used in the manufacture of their wares, and often behaved strangely.

So the next time you play the role of a "hat tree" and prepare to don your favorite headpiece, keep this thought in mind: "Who's being put on, me or the hat" A very reasonable question, all things considered.



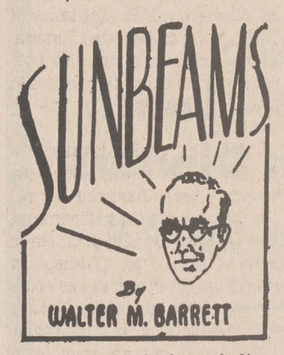
Honor roll for local students at UC Davis

The University of California college of letters and science at Davis has released the names of students who earned a place on the honor list for the 1970 winter quarter, and among them are 40 Nevada and Placer residents.

Honor students from Nevada County are Diane R. Bartsch, Bobbie J. Hasselbring, Guy R. Kachel, Devon M. Stewart and Sherman N. Williamson, all of Grass Valley; John S. Atkinson, and Karel Sauby of Truckee; David M. West of Washington; and Andrew Frey and Sarah Woerner of Nevada City.

Placer County students earning honors are Mitchell E. Abbot and Susan Hawkins of Kings Beach; Mark Bauman, Karole Lamborn and Kindra Lamborn, Meadow Vista; Claudette Bruneau, and Carla Rudolph, Newcastle; Leslie C. Lambert of Rocklin; Kurtis Fox, Patrick Hughes, Susan Jordan, Alan Lakso, Carolyn Nunn, Andrea Schrader, Carolyn Spalding and Lawrence Whalen, Jr., all of Auburn; Richard Walters, Colfax; Jill Vandergrift, Forest Hill; and Richard Anderson, William Cheney, James Chuchas, Gail Martinelli and Kenneth Rogers, all of Roseville.

Ranking on the dean's list is determined through grade point average and recognizes approximately the top one fourth of the students enrolled in the college for achieving an average of at least 3.3 (B+) out of a possible 40 (A).



A subject which we believe has had far too little public notice but which, to us at least, is of vital importance is the continuing and growing number of vehicle accidents on the highways of the country.

We deplore most emphatically the senseless slaughter in our equally senseless war in Vietnam, but the more than 50,000 people killed on our streets and highways each year and the thousands more permanently injured, to say nothing of the millions of dollars in damage, creates only passing notice.

We are not attempting to detract from the horror which marks the Vietnam war, but only calling attention to another national tragedy.

Whether publicizing with stories and pictures of fatal and tragic vehicle crashes does any good in preventing further carnage is a matter of opinion. Probably nearly everyone reads or skips over these hidden items and soon forgets their lesson or warning, gets in their car and takes chances of having his or her name in the next small story, tucked away in a back page, listing the day's vehicle crashes. Unless the victim is a prominent, widely-known figure, the story seldom makes the front page, but is listed more as a statistic.

Columns in daily newspapers are devoted to weight reducing, medical advice, politics, gardening and other chit chat, but to our knowledge few if any writers devote space or time to cutting down our tragic highway carnage by offering suggestions or advice to motorists. Perhaps this advice might be ignored along with the stories, but it seems to us that more drastic steps must be taken if drivers continue to violate the laws and rules of the road and death continues to be an accepted way of motoring.

Violators should be arrested and punished, but if the horror of the highway is to be stopped or minimized then the problem is in the hands of the drivers where it rightly belongs.

Fugazi says caseload up

Judge Robert A. Fugazi, incumbent candidate for judge in the Tahoe Judicial District, in a campaign statement this week said that during his nine years in office the volume of cases in the district have steadily increased with the growth in local population and tourists.

He noted that civil jurisdiction of the justice court has been raised from $500 to $1,000, another cause for increase in case volume.

Licensed to practice law in California since 1951, Judge Fugazi in the past served as deputy district attorney for six years. In 1961 the board of supervisors appointed Fugazi district judge, and later that year he was elected to fill the balance of the late Judge Charrison's term. He was re-elected for a six-year term in 1964.

Having practiced law for 19 years, Fugazi said he has kept abreast of changes in court procedure and rules of evidence. "The justice court can best serve the needs of the public and protect the rights of the people by having a judge with a background of legal education and training. No longer is the justice court merely a traffic court," Fugazi's statment said.

Truckee needs youth program

Arthur Kennerson, candidate for judge in the Truckee judicial district, Monday said that as judge he would initiate a youth counselling program "that would enable our young to become a more integral part of our society."

Kennerson stressed the need for this type of program in the Truckee area, saying he thought it could be accomplished by coordinating the efforts of local officials, businessmen and merchants.

In his statement, Kennerson also said he would seek to establish an aura of respect for the court through "firm and fair application of the laws that govern us all.'

Critical of what he called a "double standard system that is based on who you are," Kennerson said, "this will be your court, not a tool for any group or individual. I will not be swayed by any outside influence in matters before the court."

More bikes, fewer crashes

Motorcycle registration in California has risen 128 per cent in the past five years, but the number of motorcycles involved in fatal and injury accidents rose only 48 per cent in the same period, California Highway Patrol Commissioner Harold W. Sullivan said today.

In 1964 there were 208,362 registered motorcycles in the state, and 10,326 motorcycles were involved in fatal and injury traffic accidents (496 per 10,000 registrations).

By contrast, in 1969 registration had climbed to 475,917 motorcycles, and 15,271 were involved in fatal and injury accidents (321 per 10,000 registrations).

The declining trend of motorcycle traffic accidents observed for a two-year period when the number of fatal and injury accidents dropped from 14,568 in 1966 to 14,213 in 1967 and 13,826 in 1968 did not continue in 1969. However, the number of such accidents per 10,000 registrations declined continuously: from 462 in 1966 to 401 in 1967, 344 in 1968, and 321 in 1969.

While motorcycle registrations rose 18 per cent in the year from 1968 to 1969, the number of motorcycle accidents increased only 10½ per cent, resulting in the decline in the accident rate, Sullivan said.

Despite the declining accident rate, motorcycles continue to have a higher frequency of accidents than other vehicles. In 1964, for instance, there were only 147 fatal and injury accidents per 10,000 registered motor vehicles in California, and in 1969 that rate dropped to 136. Thus, the motorcycle accident rate, which was 3.4 times as high as the rate for all motor vehicles in 1964, dropped to 2.4 times as high in 1969.

"This is a significant improvement," Sullivan said, "but the rate must be reduced still further."

He said that the California Highway Patrol and the Department of Motor Vehicles have responded to the rapid increase in motorcycle registrations with the publication early this year of a pocket-sized "Motorcycle Rider's Handbook," available at any office of the Highway Patrol or the Department of Motor Vehicles.

MY FINAL LETTER TO THE VOTERS AND PEOPLE OF NEVADA COUNTY

Recently at a Candidates' Meeting sponsored by the P.T.A. in Truckee, one of my worthy opponents said to me: "You know, Otis, if it weren't for your age you would be a 'shoo-in' for election'."

My esteemed opponents, while admitting I am otherwise qualified to serve as a Superior Court Judge are contending that my age alone should prevent my election. I believe these facts are evidence that the contention cannot be sustained:

There is in Southern California a very wealthy man who is the owner and publisher of some 18 newspapers in this and other states; daily he is in his office working diligently in the management of this empire; he believes and he advocates in his papers that our public school system is illegal and should be abolished; this fine old gentleman is 92 years of age.

No one questions his right to this belief and to its public advocacy in his newspapers.

Would it not be an anomaly; would it not be violating a fundamental American tradition and right were I, a man much younger, and a devout believer in our public schools, prevented from serving as a judge of the Superior Court solely on account of my age?

Had this theory been accepted the constitutional convention in 1787 would have been denied the assistance of the wise and venerable Benjamin Franklin, who was then in his eighties.

And what of Winston Churchill, who was active until 90; of DeValera, President of the Irish Republic who is 87; of Oliver Wendell Holmes, one of the outstanding Justices of the Supreme Court, who served until he was 91; of our present Supreme Court Justices, Justice Black, who will soon be 84; of the several members of Congress, who are or soon wili be 90?

Who among us know when we will be stricken down? Surely it is only the Omnipotent One referred to in the inscription on our money, "In God We Trust," who can know this.

Finally, I want to say that I deeply appreciate the courteous and kind treatment universally given me as I personally talked to you about my candidacy, and to all—there are many—who have assisted and are now assisting me, I am indeed grateful for your support and confidence.

In conclusion, I am hopeful that in making your decision you wiil recall the words of Senaca, the Roman philosopher, who said over two thousand years ago: "We learn to play the flute by playing the flute." John Dewey, a leading educator put it in modern language: "We learn to do by doing," and the Holy Bible says this: Job 12-12 "With the ancient is wisdom; and in length of days understanding."

Respectfully and Sincereiy,

Otis Babcock

Candidate for the Office of Judge of the Superior Court.

Local chamber names woman as president

Truckee–Donner Chamber of Commerce for the first time in its long history elected a woman as president last week when the new board of directors selected Mrs. Karen Saylor to head the organization for the coming year.

Mrs. Saylor, who with her husband operates a ski resort on Donner Summit, is also the first chamber member from that area to serve as president.

Other officers named to serve with Mrs. Saylor are Herb Crenshaw, first vice president; Dave Bennett, second vice president; George Pifer, treasurer; and Georgene Ballinger, secretary. Bennett, the only newcomer among those elected, is the recently appointed editor of the Sierra Sun.

The election of officers follows extensive reorganization activities within the chamber. For the past several years officers were elected by vote of the membership and affairs of the chamber were carried out by an executive committee appointed by the president.

With this election the chamber returns to its original structure of a board of directors elected by the membership, with the board then electing officers.

Reorganization became necessary when Carl Briggs, former editor of the Sierra Sun, resigned as president in February. He was promoted to managing editor of both the Sun and the Tahoe Daily Tribune, which required his relocating at South Lake Tahoe. Jay Price, first vice president, took over as acting president, then shortly afterward Mr. and Mrs. Les Geary, manager and secretary of the chamber respectively, were involved in a serious automobile accident.

In relenquishing the gavel to Mrs. Saylor, Price thanked the executive committee for their excellent cooperation in carrying on the business of the chamber after the resignation of Briggs, and he paid special tribute to the Gearys for their devotion to chamber work and the many activities in which they participated on behalf of the Truckee–Donner community.

Member Daisy Foote filled in as interim volunteer secretary for a time and Jack Marquette is currently serving as temporary manager.

The new board of directors, elected the previous week, includes Joe Aguera, Reuben Maki, Ray Smith, Sherman Reams, Rex Reid, Gordon Reddall, Stephanie Anderson, Ed Emery, Daisy Foote, the above officers, and Jay Price, outgoing president. Mrs. Foote will serve in the place of Geary who asked to withdraw from the board.

Truckee court cases

The following cases were heard and adjudicated recently by F. W. Wilson, judge of the Truckee Justice Court:

Frederic Burton of Sacramento, appearing on a speeding charge, was found guilty. He was fined $24, but payment was suspended.

Alphonso Davis of Berkeley, appearing on charges of speeding and failure to appear, was found guilty and fined $44. Payment of the fine was suspended.

Robert Beshears of San Pablo, appearing on a charge of driving with a suspended or revoked license, was found quilty. He was fined $200 and sentenced to five days in jail.

Charles major of San Francisco, appearing on charges of driving without a valid license and having knowledge of the license's suspension, was found guilty on the first charge and fined $62. The second charge was dismissed.

Elkin Roy Johnson, charged with violation of Sections 242 and 243, battery upon a peace officer, appeared at a preliminery hearing. The case was bound over to Superior Court at Nevada City with bail set at $2,500.

April radioactivity up

Radioactivity rose slightly in air samples collected during April, the State Department of Public Health reported today.

The statewide average in April was 0.59 picocuries per cubic meter of air, compared with 0.50 picocuries per cubic meter in March. A picocurie is equal to one millionth of one millionth of a curie, and a curie is the amount of radioactivity associated with one gram of radium.

"The danger from radioactive fallout in California continues to be far below levels of public health concern" said Dr. Louis F. Saylor, state public health director.

County passes sewer rule

Nevada County supervisors unanimously passed an emergency ordinance effective immediately which requires sewers on all future lots of less than one acre.

The sudden action is designed to give the planning commission an effective tool before next Monday's meeting at which time the tentative map of Unit 3 of Deer Creek Park subdivision will be considered. The unit is proposed for one quarter acre lots with spetic tanks.

Under present county law the planning commission could not deny septic tanks if the health department approved them as it has done in Deer Creek subdivision.

* * *

Views concerning proposed amendments to the subdivision and zoning ordinance concerning lot size requirements in relation to sewer and water requirements were debated at length but no conclusions were reached at a county planning commission public hearing Monday night.
Monday night.

The commission continued the hearing until 8:30 p.m. June 15. The regular meeting hour was advanced to accommodate Dep. County Counsel Brian Bishop, who has prior commitments, which would have precluded his attendance at the earlier hour.

Proposed amendments to the subdivision ordinance would change it to provide for the planning commission to review recommendations from the county health department, Advisory Review Committee, and appropriate water and sewer districts, according to Stanley Mansfield, planning director.

He said, "Upon receipt of these recommendations, the commission (upon proper findings) can exceed minimums recommended."

The proposed change in the zoning ordinance which appeared to generate the most dissension concerned a proposal that two acre sites be required where there is no connection to a public water supply nor to a sanitary sewerage system, and that one acre sites be required where there is a public water supply and septic tank. The proposal included a clause that upon recommendation of the county health department, a greater area could be required for sewage disposal by septic tanks and leach lines.

Several development companies and individuals objected to the proposed minimums.

Two brothers who are developing 34 acres of land near Alta Sierra charged that the people and the commission are victims of "pollution hysteria," They contended that they had not been given proper information concerning the proposal and therefore were not qualified Monday to give proper testimony. Chairman Bert Livingston several times asked them to limit their testimony, and at one point, when they veered from the matter of the hearing, ruled a brother out of order. Another small land owner contended that the proposed change would punish" small land owners.

Representatives of General American Development Corporation, Lake World Properties, and Pat O'Brien urged that the commission decide sewerage requirements on a technical basis rather than by lot size.

The General American representative claimed that he has no quarrel with attempts at control, but that "many many factors" influence sewage disposal. Lot size requirements "will not solve all problems," he said. He urged the commission "not to lock yourselves in a position that precludes good development."

He contended that the proposed ordinance would limit planned open space developments and hoped that in its final stage it will consider "slopes, tree coverage, and soil suitability" rather than lot size alone.

Supporting the proposal were representatives of the State Department of Fish and Game, the Sierra Club; the Truckee Environmental Impact Committee; and Edward Litke, a self described "veteran of 20 years of fighting against septic tanks."

Petroglyphs featured at women's meeting

At a luncheon meeting Friday, held at the clubhouse on West River Street in Truckee, Wyethia Federated Women's Club had as their guest speaker Mary Rusco, acting director of the Nevada Archeological Survey and editor of the Nevada Archeological survey Reporter. This is a bi-monthly publication, a cooperative program of the University of Nevada System and the Nevada State Museum.

Mrs. Rusco showed slides of archeological areas in Nevada, and some sites which are going to be destroyed by highway and other construction projects, which will be salvaged before completion of the projects. The colored slides showed petroglyphs and pictographs at these sites.

There is a proposed amendment to the United States Antiquities Preservation Act. This "basically is conservation legislation to expand, facilitate and promote the protection and recovery of one of America's great non-renewable resources-the evidence of the past. The need for action is urgent for it is estimated that a majority of archeological sites will be damaged or destroyed within the next 25 years."

Mrs. Rusco urged all citizens of the Truckee-Donner area to be aware that the archeological remains in this area should be saved for posterity and archeological survey. Should any sites be threatened by construction projects near by, one can get in touch with Dr. Francis A. Reddell of Sacramento, or Donald R. Tuohy, Nevada State Museum, Carson City, Nevada. Reddell's address is State of California Resources Agency, Dept. of Parks and Recreation, P. O. Box 2390, Sacramento, Calif. 95811.

Keffenhofen makes bid

Ernest N. Kettenhofen of San Anselmo, candidate for the Republican nomination to the State Board of Equalization for the Third District to replace the retiring Paul R. Leake, is a Marin County businessman, a Lake County rancher and the owner-operator of recreational Property in Placer County at Lake Tahoe.

Kettenhofen is uniquely qualified to serve as a member of the State Board of Equalization because of his experience, knowledge and interests. For the past 20 years he has attained successful careers in both the business world and the world of public affairs.

He owns and operates the two largest industrial and office buildings in Sausalito, and has extensive commercial holdings in Marin County. In addition, he owns and runs a 1,200-acre ranch in Lake County, and has owned and operated the historic Chambers Lodge resort in Homewood, Placer County, until last year when he sold a large portion of this property to the Perini Corporation. Kettenhofen still owns half of the Tahoe Ski Bowl in that area, in addition to various parcels of real estate.

Kettenhofen attended the Maritime Academy as a recipient of a Matson Lines scholarship, the only one ever offered by that company, to his knowledge.

Holy Land talk Sunday

Dr. Robert Affeldt, who recently returned from a tour of the Holy Land, will host a slide presentation and tell of his travels, 8 p.m. Sunday at the United Methodist Church in Truckee.

Bids opened for bridge revamping

Bids were opened May 20 by the State Division of Highways on a project to reconstruct and resurface bridge decks on the mountain section of Interstate 80 between Colfax and Floriston near the Nevada state line. This distance is more than 60 miles.

Adhesive Engineering Company of San Carlos is low bidder on the project with a proposal of $399,673, according to officials at the Marysville district office. There were eight firms bidding.

The work must be done during the summer months due to severe winter weather at the high sierra altitude.

Because vacation travel on this interstate route will be heavy, highway engineers have planned for maximum traffic safety during the course of this project. The freeway is a four-lane divided highway. Only short single lane sections on each roadway will be closed at a time.

There will be advance warning signs and flashing beacons at locations where motorists will be required to follow a tapered area narrowing the freeway from two lanes to one lane.

At some locations the single lane restriction will remain in effect for several nights, but advance public announcement will be made prior to that time.

The work will take four months and could be finished by fall, weather permitting.

Barbecue buffet at installation

A banquet and joint installation of officers will take place June 26 at Boreal Ridge for Truckee–Donner Chamber of Commerce and Nevada County Chamber of Commerce.

The occasion marks the first time the county chamer has held their annual membership gathering in the Truckee–Donner area.

The affair will be in the western tradition, with casual or western wear and a barbecue dinner being the order of the day.

Tentative plans call for a no–host cocktail party at 6:30 p.m. with chef Jack Marquette serving his famous buffet style beans and barbecue commencing at 7:30, with musical entertainment of an appropriate nature being furnished during the evening's festivities.

WHY am I here?...(a) I like it.
(b) Members of my family (four generations strong) like it and are here ... retired and in business.

WHY did I leave my position with Shell Oil in New York after 20 years? (a) because the last five years of my tenure with Shell Oil I was "in the field" throughout the United States and the continual travel was devoid of community life.

WHY am I a candidate for Nevada county Auditor-Controller?

(a) because I have chosen this area in which to live and work.

(b) several property owners concerned about the lack of fiscal controls in county government approached me with the plan to install efficient business procedures utilized in the highly competitive free enterprise system.

(c) I believe my academic and business background, from graduate accountant to Chief Accountant in progressive steps over a 20 year period, well qualifies me to initiate proper accounting procedures and internal controls considered vital to a successful business where rising costs are not controlled by raising the taxes.

(d) I believe the county departments, agencies, special districts and your supervisors can operate more effectively and efficiently when they are provided the factual fiscal information they require to make intelligent decisions.

Donner doings

By VI WHITE

Ah, straw hat and sun tan lotion weather, hope it lasts over the three day Memorial Day weekend coming up.

Waterskiers are getting more frequent, but the water is still mighty cold.

* * *

A new sailboat dotted the scene last weekend. Tiny Mercer's 21–footer looked sleek, but could have used more wind to really put it to a test.

George Tallyn's new big Evinrude inboard–outboard took off for it's maiden trip from Donner Lake Lodge.

* * *

Bicycling around the lake is good exercise and also lets you see things close–up. Snow plants are poping through the ground, wild currants are in bloom and all decidious trees and shrubs are unfolding tender new leaves.

Domestic blooms of daffodils, jonquils, tulips and grape hyacinths are colorful. Spring is just beginning up here.

* * *

Not sure whether it was a Pintail or Mallard momma duck out teaching her four tiny offspring the ways of getting food, but they were certainly unconcerned about us humans watching them.

We should see Mrs. Merganser with her brood soon.

* * *

Now that the full moon is diminishing, fishing should be better, but glad to know some people are catching them. George Pifer and his crew caught their limits of Brookies near Gregory Creek while anchored off shore.

* * *

The Donner Lake Property Owners float has been returned, thanks to Russ Russell, who managed to tow it as far as the Corum's pier one day and Charlie completed the trip with our boat last Sunday.

It is all ready to be put into use and tied along side the mate. The DLPOA have a big work party planed for next weekend, all the floats will be put in place and the swimming area markers arranged.

* * *

The Jamieson's have been busy getting their beach all ready for the holiday crowds, sand raked, tables put in place and swimming and water ski areas fixed up.

* * *

Sure glad to have the Maragliano's back, but their return was not as pleasant as expected. Their neighbors Eva and Roy Martin were planning to have them over for lunch the day they arrived, but Eva slipped and fell outside just before and ended up in the hospital.

She says the new plastic splint was great during the ambulance trip, but that she still could feel every bump, especially the ridges left across the hiway for sewer connections.

Her knee required pins, and a full cast for part of the summer. You'll have to get out on the end of your pier Eva and do some fishing too.

* * *

Charlie has decided to sell his motor bike now that he'll be in a cast all summer too. It's a Harley Davidson, for more information just call us, 587–3866.

* * *

Have been wondering why Ginny Stroble hasn't been water–skiing yet, she's usually the first to attempt the sport for the season, but talked with her mother Alice the other day and found out Ginny has been in Europe for six weeks with her grandmother. A graduation gift, after finishing high school in January and working at Squaw Valley as a ski instructor this winter.

Alice was so pleased and exited to receive a phone call from Paris on her birthday.

The Stroble's have purchased the house next to their La Marina Lodge and will use it for additional rooms. Their Donner Lake Coffee Shop has been open weekends all winter and will soon operate everyday.

* * *

Further plans will be made today for the 5th annual Flower Show July 25 at the Truckee–Donner Public Utility District building.

The Sierra Tinker Belles Garden Club is meeting at Mabelle Hadley's.

Few changes in study

Few changes were made as Nevada county's supervisors studied some of the smaller departments' budget requests this week.

The actions on these budgets for 1970–71 are:

– Building maintenance, $110,120, up $10,853 from this year.

Included in this budget is $2,591 for a new van used for a painting truck. The old one, a 1951 model, was bought by the county in 1960 and drew this written comment from Clare Huges, purchasing agent:

"Except for the tires, this vehicle has no value."

Chairman Willie Curran joked that Building Supt. W. N. McCormack should "keep it a few more years and we could sell it for an antique."

– Nevada Judicial District, $25,988, up $1,456. This total is $2,900 below the original request because of revised figures submitted by Judge Verle Gray.

– Central services $140,863, up $8,373. The girls in this office requested a tall stool so they can sit while working the copying machine. The cost was $45 so the board granted it.

The budget includes $108,840 for the yearly lease–purchase payment on the courthouse annex and the Truckee Government Center. This is the sixth year of the 25–year lease period after which the county will have title to the buildings.

In the central services part of this budget, most of the increase, some $8,000, was because of increased use of the county's printing unit by departments.

– Insurance, $93,400, down $16,600 from this year's budget. However, not all of this year's insurance budget will be spent. The actual total will be about $85,000. Supervisor Dean Lawrence voted against tentative approval of this budget, indicating she wanted a more complete breakdown of individual insurance costs.

– Surveyor, $16,300, no change; personnel commission, $5,459, no change; Truckee Government Center, $16,955, up $506; Overall Economic Development Plan, $11,368, down $77. Some $5,000 of this budget represents Nevada county's share of the Sierra Economic Development District budget.

Ponderosa Putters

A great summer day prevailed for the Ponderosa and Grass Valley home and home tournament at the Ponderosa Golf Course, with a field of 36 men and 19 women. After all scores were carded, the match between the two clubs was a tie.

From the Grass Valley club low gross honors were awarded to Bill Clark and low net to Loren Trubeshenk in the men's division. Low gross was awarded to Skip Reibe and low net went to Mary Clark in the ladies division. Bob Tonini captured the men's low gross for the Ponderosa with a 71, followed by Eldon Tonini 77, and Ange Besio 83. Vying for low net was Clarence Osburn with 65, J. Hollingshead 66, and Glen Thomsen 69.

Be Carson captured the low gross for the Ponderosa ladies with low net going to Barbara Zorich 1st., Hazel Nixon 2nd, and Juanice Hollingshead 3rd. Following play, refreshments were served. Thanks to Pat Tonini, Marion Thomsen, Molly Maki and Doris Wright for their superb culinary contributions.

President Ruben Maki has annouced the Lions Club tournament will be held on June 3rd starting at 3 p.m., followed by a pre-meet and dinner.

On June 21 the First annual Father's Day Tournament will be held at the Ponderosa Golf Course. Applications are available at the club house and also from Ruben Maki at the Fire House. There will be a tee prize, luncheon, refreshments and trophy awards. This will be team play giving all young golf aspirants a chance to play with dad, grandpa, or "adopted" dad for-a-day. So hurry and get those applications in to Alex at the club house as the entry deadline is June 5th.

On June 7 the Scotch foursomes will begin at the Ponderosa at 3 p.m. These will be held every other Sunday. Following play, refreshments are served and a potluck dinner or barbecue is the highlight of the day.

Ladies Day begins June 2, so lady golfers, wherever you are please join the group and make it grow. Play will commence at 9 a.m. Phone Hazel Stewart at the golf course, 587-3501, or Barbara Zorich, 587-4018, for more detailed information.

The Ponderosa Ladies have set September 18 for their annual invitational date. Invitations will be sent to the following clubs: Tahoe City, Alta Sierra, Auburn Valley, Nevada County, Palo Alto Hills, Hidden Valley, Reno Women's Golf Club and Stead.

Local lady golfers participating in out-of-town tournaments have been Norma Russell, Be Carson and Barbara Zorich. Play was enjoyed at Auburn Valley's Cal-Nevada Day, and the Harrah's and Nugget tournaments in Reno.

County gets audit ideas

Two firms have submitted proposals to the Nevada County Board of Supervisors request concerning an in depth audit, but neither contains a precise dollar amount.

Proposals were received in this week's board mail from Haskins and Sells of San Francisco and from Harris, Schwartz and Young of Grass Valley. the latter firm which did this year's audit, had submitted a proposal earlier to do regular fiscal audit for the coming year for $5,000.

However, the supervisors, on the urging of Dean Lawrence, decided to find out how much a more detailed audit would cost.

Neither firm would give a set maximum, although both did cite hourly charges for personnel.

Haskins and Sells said its audit "would examine the financial statements of all funds and (make) comments regarding the internal accounting controls and other related financial and operational matters."

In its letter, Harris, Schwartz and Young said "a more thorough audit would take several forms such as additional tests of the accounting records, a more complete survey of internal cantrols and accounting procedures, a complete management survey or possible even a review of the county budget including workload standards and a review of the criteria used to justify the need for additional capital outlay funds."

The letter says "the most productive would be a more complete survey of internal controls and accounting procedures in each department or office, with a written report on our findings in each unit."

Truckee tales

BETTY KIELHOFER

In talking with Melba, I found that her daughter, Linda Giovannoni, will be teaching at Shasta Junior College near Redding next fall. She's thrilled as it's a brand new school. In fact, so new that they haven't started a ski program as yet so have asked Linda to initiate it, which is right up her alley. Good luck to her. She has taught P.E. for the past two years.

Visited Glenshire last week and equipment is running rampant out there. Two homes are nearly finished and they have completed several barbeque pits in the old picnic spot by the springs at McKay. I'm filled with nostalgia when I go to that location as some of our best times were had there in years past. I'm glad to see they didn't subdivide that particular area. It will be a recreation spot for all the residents of Glenshire. The' lake is small but cute.

Got a letter from the Bob Schooleys on Wake Island. They just returned from a week in Japan. Had a great time and said they took a two-day tour in the mountains near the Nikko area. They miss mountains very much.

Saw a picture by the name of "A Man Called Horse" at the Majestic in Reno and want to recommend it highly if you get a chance to go. It's supposed to be very authentic as far as their rituals, etc. It's about the Shoeshone and Sioux tribes. Be prepared for many bloody scenes.

My brother Cliff Ellis left Thursday for Wyoming to visit Jack. He plans to spend a few days with him and fish along the route coming and going. He'll be back in about 10 days. Wish I could have gone too. In my latest message from Maggie, she told of riding with the annual elk drive. About 350 people (on horses) drove elk back up into the steep mountains, then the local sheriff and his wife supervised an Elkburger and potato luncheon for about 1,000 people. (Had a laugh, 'cause Jack said last year that most of the elk wander right back down to the lowland the next day). Tradition!

I read that the way you realize you've reached middle age is when you have given up everything you can and still don't feel good. Right?

Regardless of your choice, please turn out at the polls Tuesday. It's not only your privilege but your solemn duty. Primaries are even more important than the finals in most cases.

My good friend Tom James of James Lakeshore Resort had a mild stroke last Sunday but I understand he looks just wonderful and you would never know it happened. Maybe he just wanted a good rest and is foolin' everyone. He can't have too many visitors just yet.

Saw Pat Geary at the same time I attempted to see Tom and she's surprisingly cheerful even with the casts and straps hanging everywhere. She said one good bit of news was that she didn't believe she would be hospitalized for the full 14 weeks as originally predicted. Brave girl!

Marge and Jim Walker ventured north to Yreka to visit the folks for a week and stopped back by Susanville for a game of golf on the way home. She said it was one of the most enjoyable games they've had - really congenial people.

There was a pretty good turnout from Nevada City for the golf match on Sunday. The dinner was real fine and we enjoyed cocktails afterwards at the home of Joe Reyes!, which is next to Alex and Hazel's. It has an especially beautiful interior. We also met Mr. and Mrs. Bill Morris from Davis. All nice, congenial people. I'm still not accustomed to seeing homes on the golf course. It surely affords a warm and happy setting for those living there.

Barbara Zorich got 1st low net in the tournament and couldn't have been more delighted. Bee Garson captured low gross. There should be more news about the club elsewhere in today's paper so won't elaborate.

Got a card from Dr. Ralph Duncan and wife Kathy. They have been traveling since May 6 through Okinawa, Hong Kong and should be back in Honolulu by now, having a wonderful time. They live in Fullerton and usually visit us each summer.

Bye for now.

Farris seeks judicial post

To Van B. Farris, a candidate for judge in the Tahoe Judicial District, there will be a very important blank space on the ballot - important because Farris is a write-in candidate.

In a declaration of his policy Farris stated that he would "encourage personal appearance and settle cases by forfeiture of bail only when necessary."

In the statement Farris also said that if elected he would:

Provide a weekly summary of court activities to newspapers so that all may know how their court is conducting itself.

Reach decisions promptly once all evidence has been presented and testimony and arguments heard.

"The state must bear a fair share and larger share of the school cost. It must bring relief to the property taxpayer in so doing..."

—Excerpt from a speech by GOVERNOR RONALD REAGAN Sacramento, January 11, 1967

This is what Proposition 8 does

- ☐ It restores "the historic 50-50 ratio" for state and local financing of public schools, which Governor Reagan said, in the same speech, "I hope that we will be able to restore."
- ☐ It requires the state to finance 90 per cent of the state and local cost of welfare.
- ☐ Proposition 8 significantly reduces the burden on property taxpayers in so doing, and grants additional property tax relief by increasing the present homeowners' exemption from $750 to $1000.
- ☐ Proposition 8 protects property taxpayers in the future by requiring the state to pay for all new county programs forced on the counties by the legislature and at least 50 per cent of the cost of all new school programs forced on local districts by the legislature.
- ☐ Proposition 8 makes better educational opportunity available—from non-property tax sources —for school students in every district in California.

For PROPERTY TAX RELIEF—NOW

For BETTER SCHOOLS—NOW

Vote YES on Proposition 8

AT THE SAME TIME, VOTE YES ON 7

Hundreds of school building projects, already approved by the people, are held up because the state can't sell its bonds—under existing restrictions in today's bond market. Proposition 7 enables the state to continue its efficient bond marketing program in order to build schools, provide for veterans housing, beaches and parks, flood control and water projects.

Students plant trees

Thirty eager high school students from San Leandro came to Truckee Saturday – and they left with blistered hands, sunburned skin and sore feet.

The 30 young adults from San Leandro High School were here to plant trees in the Hobart Mills area, and when they left there were between 1,800 to 2,000 new trees dotting the landscape.

The project, organized by Don Amaral, a San Leandro senior and potential forester, was coordinated through Dan Craig, acting timber management assistant at Truckee Ranger District.

The mixed bag of sophomores, juniors and seniors – both girls and boys – were sponsored by Rotary and Soroptimist clubs from San Leandro. They were accompanied by Jim Walker, dean of boys, and a groups of counselors.

Craig said that after the planting session, the students talked of the possibility of making the excursion an annual affair for San Leandro High students.

EXPERTISE AND EXPLANATIONS - Daniel Craig, Truckee Ranger District, demonstrates the correct method used when swinging a special hook used to dig holes when planting young trees. Behind him 30 visiting students watch closely, since they were soon to do the "swinging." (Sun Photo)

Tahoe beckons conventioneers

The Greater North Tahoe Chamber of Commerce has recentally sent out literature on convention facilities available in the North Tahoe area to over 600 corporation presidents in Northern California.

This major chamber project will enable the presidents of the corporations to pick the facility that will suit its company in the Northern Tahoe Area.

The major goal of the chamber is to increase convention activity especially during the off seasons of spring and fall.

Convention facilities available on the north end are Cal-Neva, Kings Castle, Nevada Lodge and the Four Seasons, a new addition to the north end near Tahoe City. Squaw Valley offers facilities with the Squaw Valley Lodge. Squaw Valley Inn and the Olympic Village Hotel.

Trem talk

By SUSIE FISH

Last Tuesday, twenty-five girls tried out for J. V., varsity, cheerleader, and songleader. Not counting a pair of ripped shorts (to whom they belong we shall not mention) there were no mishaps.

Wednesday, campaign speeches were given. Let's see who keeps their promises!!

Thursday, voting took place. After ballot tabulations had been made, it was announced that there would be a run-off between Walt Brett and Susie Fish for president.

* * *

Friday was Sadie Hawkins Day at TNT. Between all the wierd dressing, water pistols, and those wacky contests, everyone had a great time. In the contest division, the sophomores placed first with 40 points, the juniors second with 39 points, the seniors next with 30 points, and the freshmen last with 17 points.

That night, "REDWING" from Sacramento provided the sounds. Babe Street won the stuffed pig for the raffle. All in all it was a very secessful day!

* * *

Sadie Hawkins got her man!! Can anyone name the Tahoe-Truckee teacher who is no longer a bachelor? Congratulations!

* * *

Last Wednesday, GAA members stayed after school for baseball. As there weren't enough players, the Offbeats combined with the Crabgrasses to play the NSL and Shortstops. The final score was 9 to 5 with the (can you believe?) seniors winning.

Due to lack of participation, all GAA for the rest of the year will be cancelled. The Mother-Daughter Banquet has also been cancelled.

* * *

Only 4 1/2 days left!!! Everyone has senior-itis! And after one more week, TREM too, will go into hibernation.

YO-HO-HO AND A BOTTLE OF SUNTAN OIL - Helen Ramsted and Georgeann Mahoney, teachers in Tahoe-Truckee unified School District, and friend dog, Ursula, found themselves adrift Thursday on a raft in Donner Lake. Inspired by balmy weather and the legend of Huck Finn, the girls embarked on their journey after receiving instructions from Doris Lucchesi and Lucille Sauby to stay close to shore. Sky Miles, intrepid Donner yachtsman, rescued the girls when they got to depths beyond the navigational abilities of their 20-foot pole.

Environmental impact news

By ROBERTA HUBER

On May 18 the Nevada County Planning Commission received the recommendations of the planning department concerning lot sizes, water source, and sewage disposal. The minimum lot size would be upgraded to 10,000 square feet if it is on public water supply and sewer; one acre if it is on public water but must use a septic tank; two acres if neither public water nor sewer is available. There was considerable discussion both pro and con. The meeting was continued to June 15 at 8:30 p.m. in Nevada City. The time change is for this meeting only.

Fred McLaren, assistant chief of division of water quality of the State Water Resources Control Board, was the guest speaker at our last meeting. As of May 21, the thinking of those concerned with the exportation of sewage from Tahoe seems to point to a treatment plant in the vicinity of Truckee. The effluent may be put to some beneficial use as irrigation water, either within our without the Tahoe watershed. The total bill on exportation of sewage from Tahoe will probably run $155 million.

We then were shown slides of other types of pollution in Tahoe, primarily mud, as a result of poorly conceived and controlled construction and algae incubators as a result of partial obstruction of natural flows and subsequent rise in water temperature. These are problems equally applicable to the streams and lakes around Truckee. The next meeting of the Environmental Impact Committee will be June 25. Place and speaker to be determined.

Holding off on Ward plan

Placer County supervisors have voted not to act on an proposal to keep 700 acres of timberland in Ward Valley, Lake Tahoe, as open space, pending the completion of a master plan for the area.

The property had been involved in a tri-partite agreement between owner Loren Holmwood, R.F. Nikkel Lumber Co. and the U.S. Forest Service.

According to the agreement, Holmwood would have sold the property to the lumber company which would have traded the acreage for timber-cutting rights on forest Service land in Tahoe National Forest.

John Emerson to head Salmon National Forest

John L. Emerson, deputy forest supervisor of the Tahoe National Forest, has been promoted to the position of forest Supervisor, Salmon National Forest, Henry E. Branagh, Tahoe National Forest supervisor, announced.

Emerson will be responsible for administering the 1,800,000 acres of land within the Salmon National Forest at Salmon, Idaho, beginning June 1.

Emerson assumed his current position on the Tahoe National Forest in 1966. "His efforts have made a significant impact on the quality of management on the Tahoe National Forest. It is with regret that we see him leave," Branagh said.

Emerson began his career with the forest service in 1943 when he was employed as a fireguard on the Los Padres National Forest. Since that time, he has served on various national forests in Idaho and Montana before coming to the Tahoe.

Chamber adopts resolution

The Greater North Lake Tahoe Chamber of Commerce last week at a general meeting adopted a resolution amending the chamber's recommendations for the Granite Chief study area.

Resolution 20 recommends that:

-The U.S. Forest Service abandon all plans for a trans-Sierra highway between Highways 50 and Interstate 80.

- The forest road through Barker Pass be extended no farther.

- The forest road through Bark-

- The vast bulk of Granite Chief study area be set aside as an official wilderness to remain forever in this state to provide its unique contribution to the economy, ecology, and esthetics to the Lake Tahoe basin.

Chamber reasoning behind the resolution stems from the feeling that the Granite Chief study area is an economic, ecological and esthetic extension of the Tahoe basin.

In the adopted resolution, the chamber stated that "the present wilderness character of the Granite Chief study area serves to enhance the quality and value of the North Lake Tahoe area by the provision of extensive recreation opportunities and open space which complement the basin itself."

"Proposed logging of the area's commercially poor timber, construction of destructive and unneeded roads in the area, and the development of urbanization would destroy the needed wilderness quality and value of the area," read the resolution.

Continuing, the resolution said, "such development would inhibit and make difficult the proper economic development of the North Lake Tahoe area itself, including such direct inconveniences and dangers as the passage of logging trucks through the congested Highway 89 in Tahoe City."

Charge told for Tahoe campsites

Effective on May 25 a charge will be assessed for using the more highly developed campgrounds on the Tahoe National Forest, Supervisor Henry E. Branagh announced today. The charge is $1 per night of if the camper wishes, he can purchase an annual permit for $7 which will allow the purchaser to use most National Forest recreation facilities without additional charge.

In addition, three campgrounds at Jackson Meadow Reservoir and the White Cloud Campground on Highway 20 will have a rate of $2 per nights or the annual permit plus $1 per night. Users of the White Cloud picnic area will be charged $1 or no additional charge if the user possesses an annual permit.

"This new system, called the national forest charge program, has been put into effect following the expiration of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act. Branagh stated.

Indian students to fight fires

Six high school graduates from the Stewart Indian School arrived at the Big Bend Ranger Station this week. They are the first of the summer employees to arrive there.

The six men, Larry Dorchester, Ronald Enos, Riondro Gass, Ricky Grover, Manuel Myore, and Phillip Rapheal, will work as a crew of various resource jobs and at fire prevention and fire control until the other crew members arrive in mid-June.

In June three of the men will remain in fire control, and the other three will work in timber stand improvement.

SAILING SPUDS - The once popular song "mashed potatoes" could well have been the theme song for this scene as mashed potatoes flew through the air - the object being to cover your opponent with the sticky mess. (Sun Photo)

FLAPJACK FEED - Good table manners aside, these youngsters don't really look as if they are enjoying eating as many pancakes as possible in the shortest possible time. (Sun Photo)

Tahoe sewage saga still being written

Another chapter in the Tahoe Basin sewage saga is being written, with the laboriousness and controversy typical of a monumental public project that is authored and edited by countless individuals.

At Tahoe City, construction within the public utility district's jurisdiction has mushroomed so rapidly that the "cinder cone" disposal site, originally intended as a temporary site capable of handling effluent disposal for the next 7 years has been declared inadequate for any period beyond 1972 by the Lahontan Water Quality Control Board. This has led to a scramble on the part of the Tahoe City Public Utility District officials to find a tertiary disposal site at an earlier date than they had anticipated. In addition, the desirability of merging five concerned utility districts into a "superagency" in order to implement a more efficient sewerage program in being explored.

The Lahontan report, which was delivered to the TCPUD board last Thursday, recommended that no more development be approved which would be served by the cinder cone site, and that whenever the estimated projected slow of 2.5 million gallons per day is reached, no more building permits be issued.

District manager bill Layton has indicated that a number of tertiary sites are under study. The board has 30 days to come up with specific proposals before the Placer County Department of Environmental Health would take any action.

Will award gun

The "Golden Spike," a gold-plated Winchester model 94 rifle (one of a limited number manufactured for collectors in celebration of the 1869 - 1969 railroad centennial) will be awarded by the Tahoe-Truckee CAP. The rifle, a 30-30, has almost quadrupled in value since it was made

CAP members are selling tickets on the Golden Spike at $1 each, as tax-free donations. The winner will be announced on May 31.

WHY WE NEED

VAN B. FARRIS FOR JUDGE Tahoe Judicial Dist.

The increase to $1,000 in Civil cases before Justice Courts is not exactly new, as it was effective in 1968. In 1969 the Tahoe Justice Court did not experience an increase in civil bases; but, on the contrary, showed a DECREASE IN ALL TYPES OF CIVIL CASES!

A FULL TIME JUDGE IS NEEDED—not because of any expanded jurisdiction, but for the orderly conduct of every-day matters of the court. When outside aid from other judges is required it costs us extra money. This outside aid has been required, or used, approximately 1 day a week on the average. This is the natural, and expected, result of mixing the judgeship with private law practice in the same area. The Conference of California Judges probably gave this some thought when adopting the Canons of Judicial Ethics, when they stated at Canon 27, titled "Private Law Practice": "A justice or judge of a court of record should not practice law in or out of court."

We should decide for ourselves whether law practice benfits most from the judgeship, or the judgeship from the private law practice.

Background qualifications establish that a person has the ability and intelligence to do the job; it doesn't guarantee performance. It's what a man DOES, not what he is capable of doing, that shows in the record of achievement.

Chamber pot shots

By BETTY LAYTON

The eminent architect, Burnett C. Turner, who is in charge of the restoration of the old block in Los Angeles, including Olivera Street, is donating his own time and talents towards the restoration plans for the chamber's historic log house.

Mr. Turner has a second home in Alpine Meadows and is leaving in June for a reunion at Princeton and will travel onto New York to receive the Distinguished Architect Award given for outstanding service in the field of architecture from the American Institute of Architects.

The chamber has been getting a sudden rush of voter registrants and, of course, too late to vote in the June 2 election. But, remember that you must reregister if you have changed your name, changed your address, or have not registered before! The state chamber of commerce, which maintains an entire legislative staff, recommends that you vote yes on the first 7 propositions and a definite no on number eight. If number eight passes, undefined additional financing from state sources in the approximate amount of $1.3 billion for 1970-71 will be required, and this cost will increase annually thereafter. Get out and vote June 2.

One hundred thirty persons attended the May 21 meeting of the chamber at the Four Seasons. Special guests were Economic Development Administration officials from Seattle, San Francisco, and Nevada City and the North Tahoe and the Tahoe City Public Utility Districts, who were holding joint meetings in the morning.

The people present saw an excellent tri-slide projection presentation from General American Development Corporation on their proposed plans for the Dollar Point.

TROOP 172 RETIRES THE COLORS to close this year's annual Girl Scout Camporee at Sugar Pine Point State Park, which took place last weekend. Sixteen troops in all from Truckee, Incline, Tahoe City and Kings Beach - took part, with Juniors and Cadets arriving Friday afternoon and Brownies joining them on Saturday for the days activities and evening cookout. The older girls camped out Friday and Saturday nights, and ended their weekend of learning and fun on Sunday afternoon.

Fish, Game report raps Nevada County developers

Land development activities in Nevada County have sharply curtailed hunting opportunities and an estimated 160 miles of streams have been damaged by siltation from subdivision development, according to a report released last week by the Department of Fish and Game.

"The value of the land for wildlife is expected to diminish steadily as more homes are constructed. Some of the land now being subdivided is deer winter range which is already in critically short supply," states the report compiled by fishery biologist Eric Gerstung.

Nearly 40 per cent of the stream mileage within Nevada County has been harmed by siltation, stream bank alterations and domestic waste discharges, and five major reservoirs covering 3,000 acres have been "degraded by turbid water from land development runoff.'

About 40,000 new lots have been created since 1964 by subdivisions and lot splitting, and there are some 50,000 acres of land occupied "by some type of subdivision," the report declares.

"Poorly designed subdivision roads are one of the biggest sources of silt pollution in the county," and one subdivision "discharged so much sediment into a downstream creek that salmon spawning gravels in the Yuba River will be severely damaged if the erosion is not arrested. The Yuba River salmon fishery is worth about $600,000 annually."

The report labels the Pleasant Valley area, where Boise Cascade Properties is developing the Lake Wildwood project, as "one of the worst examples of excessive soil erosion. Commencement of construction coincided with the beginning of the wet weather with little consideration given to protection of the soil. Road surfaces for the most part were not paved, oiled or even graveled and a series of gullies up to three feet deep soon appeared."

The biologist estimated "many washed into the principal stream" and a 300 to 400 per cent increase in turbidity occurred downstream from disturbed areas during normal storm thousands of cubic yards of sediment runoff periods.

Since 1964, the report indicates, "open land in Nevada County has been converted into lots and small parcels at an estimated rate ranging from 5,000 to 10,000 acres annually." Much of the activity has been in the foothill regions used as winter range and "can be a critical factor in deer survival during severe winters."

In eastern Nevada County, "continued development of the 70,000 acres of private land in the Truckee area could have a serious effect on the interstate deer herd. In addition to blocking deer migration routes, deer winter range which is already in critically short supply may be damaged or lost with new development."

The report recommends stricter road-grading ordinances, implementation of the county's general plan with modern zoning, greater open space in large subdivisions, and prohibition of home or road construction on steep or unstable slopes.

Interim plan outlined

Replete with bold new planning concepts and possibly the precursor of land use trends throughout the United States the interim plan of Tahoe Regional Planning Agency will be considered at a public hearing June 3.

At that time the agency's Advisory Planning Commission will revise the document for submission to the agency which must, by act of Congress, have the plan ready by June 18.

"It is found and declared that the waters of Lake Tahoe and other resources of the Lake Tahoe region are threatened with deterioration or degeneration," and that "there is a need to maintain an equilibrium between the region's natural endowment and its man-made environment," the plan declares.

The work, largely a consolidation of the best thinking from both the California and Nevada plans prepared prior to creation of the bi-state body, asks for definitive studies to determine standards for land use, water quality, soil conservation, recreation, deforestation and earth moving, air pollution, loss of open space, visual pollution, public service, traffic congestion, fluctuating employment, housing and outdoor advertising.

The interim plan requires that "all residential development shall be limited to that required for a predetermined permanent and seasonal population," and suggests that "mixtures of residential types, density approaches, clusters and planned units should be encouraged as a means to blend development into the environment."

Remedial work is needed in many areas already built-up, the document states, saying "there should be an effort to improve the existing building quality within the residential areas by programmed removal or rejuvenation and new construction."

Alpine Meadows, flood plains and stream beds should be retained in a natural state, through the use of zoning and other controls to "encourage their conservation in a natural state for recreational use, wildlife enhancement, (and) esthetic enjoyment."

On the subject of transportation, it encourages mass transit "for movement in urbanizing areas, around and across the lake, and into major recreational areas." Any such system, though, must be done on a regional approach with facilities "compatible with the environmental quality of the region."

Limitations are planned on cuts and fills for protection of the soil from erosion; to prevent siltation of the lakeshores and streams; as well as to decrease the amount of nutrients going into Lake Tahoe.

The report declares that open space subsidies and tax incentives should be policy to implement the goal of protecting the region's assets from "development that would reduce the area's desirability to the tourist and the local resident."

Other policies under that goal include monitoring and controlling noise pollution and requiring developers to dedicate a certain portion of useful land for parks and open space.

All in all it's a weighty document that in trying to be fair to all falls short of what many would like. But it's mostly rhetorical at this stage.

The interim plan is only a prelude to the comprehensive general plan which the agency is required to adopt by September, 1971. That document, when adopted, will guide Lake Tahoe's development for many decades.

Trout plants

SACRAMENTO – Catchable trout plants in El Dorado, Nevada and Alpine County waters are scheduled this week by the Department of Fish and Game.

Plants will be made in Lake Tahoe Basin and surrounding area at Donner Lake, Truckee River, Yuba River South Fork, all in Nevada County; four forks of the American River, the Consumnes River, El Dorado Forebay and Ice House Reservoir. all in El Dorado County

State parks to open soon

With summer rapidly approaching, visitors to the Tahoe area and residents alike will be planning camping trips or picnics, and looking for likely sites. With this in mind the Squaw Valley Department of Parks and Recreation have announced opening dates for various areas.

Fran Hodkins, spokesman for the department, said Tahoe State Recreation Area and Sugar Pine Point State Park are presently open to both campers and picnickers; Bliss State Park is open for picnics and will open for camping Thursday; and Emerald Bay will open for camping July 1. Plans for opening Donner Memorial State Park are indefinate because of a recent court order naming the park as a source of pollution at the lake. The museum there is presently open.

Veterans seek simpler admits

Admitting procedures at all Veterans Administration hospitals will be simplified, according to Dr. D. R. Robinson, director of VA's San Francisco hospital.

Veterans who are not service-disabled who apply for VA hospitalization must sign a statement certifying that they are unable to defray the cost of the needed hospitalization. An old requirement that the signature be witnessed by a notary public or an authorized VA official has been eliminated, Robinson said.

The oath reads, "I hereby swear that I am unable to defray the necessary expenses of the hospital treatment for which I have applied."

Such a statement from an eligible veteran enables VA to admit him for needed hospital care of a nonservice-connected condition, provided space is available.

Veterans who need treatment for service-connected causes are admitted in first priority, with second priority going to service-disabled veterans who need treatment for nonservice-connected causes. The oath is for the third priority group not having any service-connected medical problem.

Robinson said that the oath, which is required by law, must still be signed, and that only the notarization requirement is being discontinued.

High praise for GADC

General American Development Corporation got everything they asked for Friday at a meeting with the Placer County Planning Commission at Auburn - "because" states commissioner Brill Craner - "they presented a superior plan.

"It's the first time we've seen a plan where the developer looked at the land first, then determined its capacity and land use intensity, and studied ecological considerations before proceeding with the plan," Craner said.

GADC owns 2,235 acres of former Dollar property at North Lake Tahoe. The company's president, Dave Irmer, recommended an amendment to the 1980 General Plan which would reduce the original estimated maximum density from about 4400 to 3300. This was approved by the planning commission, which recommended the amendment to County Supervisors. GADC also suggested holding the total coverage of man-made items on the property to 5 per cent. "It was the best plan we've seen so far," Craner stated.

The planners approved a conditional use permit which will allow construction of the first phase of Dollar Estates Unit 1, which calls for 971 single family residential units on 953 acres, in attached and detached (or cluster) units. This will provide a land use density of 1.5 dwelling units per acre.

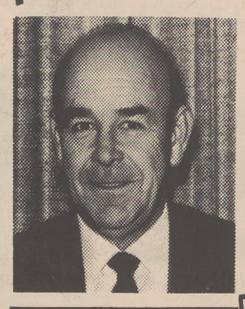
Re-Elect

WAYNE BROWN SHERIFF CORONER



We staff members of the Nevada County Sheriff's office willingly and voluntarily work our darndest for the re-election of Wayne Brown. To protect our jobs? Certainly! But also to protect the dedicated career of one of the finest Sheriffs in California's 58 counties! And also—to relieve the spirits of a hospitalized brother officer whose body pains are sharpened by the anxiety of inability to be "helping the boss" these days. That's why we urge citizens of Nevada County to join our "loyalty march" on June 2. The march is only as far as your polling place!

Make Tuesday June 2

WAYNE BROWN doesn't make promises . . . for 20 years he has KEPT THEM!

ABOUT THE MAN WE WORK FOR . . .

Everyone knows Wayne Brown. He's a Nevada County native, in the prime of good, clean health.

He had a law enforcement hankering when he was a kid growing up at Indian Springs. So he kept on schooling and studied to become a peace officer. Then studied some more — everything he could get hold of.

In 1950 he felt that he was qualified to match up to the Sheriff job. The people of Nevada County thought so, too. His electoral vote was handsome. So was the next. And the next. He had measured up. People like a man with a 24-hour sense of duty.

Wayne Brown is widely and popularly known. He broke precedence in California when he was re-elected President of the State Sheriff's Association in 1969 after a highly successful term the previous year. He put Nevada County on the map as being a good, safe place to live—free of metropolitan crime perils. Population growth here is proof enough.

Wayne Brown has never asked a staff member to tackle a job he wouldn't handle. He's amiable and friendly. He's fair and square. But he's tough as leather when the chips are down! He has the savvy, the know-how, the foresight to keep pace with the times and issues. We're proud to work for him!

We believe—
The office of Sheriff-Coroner is no job for an amateur!

You have an investment in training, experience and professionalism in Wayne Brown. Hold on to it!

"Brown-Gallino Day" IN NEVADA COUNTY!

We chipped in and bought this advertisement and we are mighty proud to affix our names. The number after each name represents the number of years service to our Sheriff, Wayne Brown.

ABOUT THE MAN IN THE HOSPITAL . . .

Everybody knows Under-Sheriff Frank Gallino. And they know him with true respect and affection.

No one wants to dwell too much on that night of Good Friday when Frank—on duty—was victim of a terrible car crash. Thanks to a countryside's prayers, the tireless ministrations of men and women in white, Frank's battered body is slowing becoming whole again.

His one big worry is his inability to be out working for his boss. You see, Frank and Wayne took oaths of office together 20 years ago. The bonds of loyalty have been well knit. The election, the peopie he has helped protect, maintenance of the office he has helped build — mean a lot to Undersheriff Frank Gallino in his room at the Sierra Nevada Memorial Hospital.

Make your electoral "X" for Wayne Brown. Make Tuesday, June 2, "Brown-Gallino" Day in Nevada County!

New law firm announces Incline Village office

A full time law firm for the North Tahoe area, Tahoe Lawyers, Ltd., has opened offices at 1000 Tahoe Boulevard (Highway 28 and Country Club), Incline Village.

"We felt there was a definite need for a 'team' which could offer full time service and a wide experience in varied fields of law practice," said Charles E. Springer, former Nevada Attorney General and associate in the new firm.

Staffing Tahoe Lawyers, Ltd. with Springer are attorneys Roger E. Newton and Peter Chase Neumann. The new firm employs a full time secretary and is open five days a week. Springer said a lawyer will be on duty or available at the Incline office most of the time.

Springer, who maintains a second home at Incline, is a long-time member of a law firm in Reno. Trial work, governmental law, personal injury law and wills and estates have been emphasized in his work over the years.

Aside from his former state position, Springer is a former member of the Nevada State Highway Board, State Prisons Board, State Board of Examiners, State Savings and Loan Association Board and was chairman of the State Apprenticeship Council.

A member of both the Nevada and District of Columbia bars for 17 years, he is also a member of the Bar of the United States Supreme Court. Springer, a Democrat who was defeated once in a bid for governor, said he has just learned and is "pleased and proud" that University of Nevada, Reno students are circulating a petition to have his name put on the ballot for governor in the fall elections.

Neumann, 30 is a native of Norfolk, Nebr. He received a BA degree in 1961 from the University of Arizona and in 1964 obtained his law degree from the same university.

For five years Neumann practiced law in Tucson, part of which he served as deputy district attorney. During his Arizona stay, he was president of the Southern Arizona Chapter, American Trial Lawyers; and president of Tucson Young Republicans.

Neumann moved to Reno in 1969 and was admitted to the Nevada bar that same year. He has been practicing in Reno since that time.

Newton has been associated with Springer in Reno for the last 10 years where his trial experience includes personal injury and negligence, contract actions and criminal defenses in both Federal and State courts.

An Oregonian, he received a BS degree from the University of Oregon and his law degree from Willamette University in 1955. he attended University of Utah and Montana State University while in the U.S. Air Corps where he was an air cadet from 1944 to 1946.

Prior to entering law, Newton was a smokejumper squad leader with the U.S. Forest Service. After coming to Reno he taught junior and senior high school.

Admitted to the Nevada Bar in 1959 he entered practice with Attorney Peter Echeverria before becoming associated with Springer the following year. Acting by appointment, Newton has been City Attorney for Gabbs, Nev. continuously since January, 1960.

Drivers escape serious injury in accidents

Two Incline residents escaped serious injury in two separate one-car accidents and a Reno man was arrested on suspicion of marijuana last week in the Incline-Crystal Bay area.

Verna Cayssials was treated and released at Tahoe Forest Hospital after she lost control of her car on winding way. The Jeep Wagoneer she was driving was totaled according to Incline deputies of the Washoe County Sheriff's Office.

Walter Benton received apparently minor injuries when his Jeepster went out of control on Crystal Bay Hill. Deputies report the car flipped and came to rest on its top.

Arrested on suspicion of possession of marijuana was Stanley G. Samproni of Reno. Samproni was arrested after he and his wife were given a lift in a jeep.

Deputies report they stopped the Jeep and asked Samproni for identification after seeing the couple picked up near Hidden Beach. At that time, deputies noticed a plastic bag of a green leafy substance in Samproni's shirt pocket. Booked at the Incline substation, Samproni later posted $1,500 bail. His wife was not held.

Deputies report in another incident that Jack Lee Bowers of Campbell, Calif. had to be subdued with Mark IV Mace when arrested during an altercation at Kings Castle Casino.

Deputies were called to the scene to find Bowers, wearing a hunting knife in his belt, threatening Security Officer Warren Mathews and "belligerant and incoherant." In attempting to make the arrest, deputies report Bowers attempted to belt them with his belt buckle. Finally subdued, he was booked at Incline Substation where two more knives were found on his person. Bowers was booked for carrying a concealed weapon, suspicion of being under influence of narcotics and suspicion of possession of narcotics. He was later transported to the Washoe County Jail at Reno.

In other Sheriff's office work, deputies issued citations for curfew violations, speeding and infractions of the "No Parking" zones, expecially in the Hidden Beach area.

Kesselring named executive chef

Dorsey Kesselring has recently been appointed executive chef at the Cal-Neva Lodge, North Lake Tahoe. He has been involved in cookery 40 years - starting at age 12 in his uncle's tavern.

Kesselring came to the Cal-Neva five months ago from Southern California, where he was the executive chef at Carlsbad's Twin Inns. Before, he worked in Oceanside, Calif., Hawaii, Alaska and Europe.

Order and creativity get the most emphasis in the Cal-Neva kitchen now. Nothing is out of place; traffic runs smoothly even during the busiest convention times. Gourmet specialties and meticulously - prepared, artistic hors d' oeuvres reflect Kesselring's proven ability.

Official tells development trend

Recreational developments that, in effect are new communities designed around the total environment are the development trend of the future and enhance rather than degrade the value of land, according to a Boise Cascade official.

The public, by and large, does not realize this, notes John Fery, executive vice president of Boise Cascade, and "it's our responsibility as developers not only to do a good job but to explain what were doing."

Fery, who was at the South Shore Friday to address a Pacific Coast Electrical Association convention, complained that the hue and cry raised by "the preservationists has not been backed up with facts."

"A lot of land developers should be legislated out of business," he stated, however "They just turn over land, without adding any value to it."

Boise Cascade, said by Fery to be the country's largest developer of recreational subdivisions, began in 1957 as the consolidation of two small timber harvesting companies in Boise, Idaho. The operation had $1.7 billion in sales last year, Fery said.

He pointed out that Boise looks for prime land within three or four hours driving time from metropolitan areas, and then improves the property with roads and recreational facilities such as golf courses, tennis courts, marinas and beaches "before any lot is sold."

"We also draw on our experience in resources management to guarantee that the ecology of an area will not be significantly disturbed by development," he commented.

JOHN FERY

"But we've still got a lot to learn."

The 40-year-old executive noted that overseeing the operations of such a far-flung company as Boise Cascade keeps him away from home much of the week, but that on weekends he goes skiing or fishing with his wife and three boys.

"I'm a conservationist," he said. "We (Boise) were practicing ecology long before anyone else could spell it," he said, commenting on the company's original operation – timber resources management.

"There is a need for people, particularly the youth of a family, in large cities to experience and enjoy another environment," he stated. "If it is wrong for a company to acquire 6,000 acres, develop 2,000 acres of it and leave the other 4,000 acres in open space then we (Boise) are in the wrong business."

Fery predicted that future developments will become the responsibility of large corporations, "simply because of the large costs involved," including inflation and meeting the needs of ecology. "I foresee a 'General Motors' in the housing industry in the next 10 years," he said.

He said the real "challenge to the developer is to make any land changes consistent with the needs of the consumer and with ecology. The extreme would be not to develop anything."

"The key to a successful development is for the developer to make a commitment to proper planning on day one. Much of the development five years ago wasn't like that," he commented.

"It's not the legitimacy of what we're doing I'm concerned about, but communicating with the concerned public that what we're doing is right and why it is right," he asserted.

"In the 1970s there must be prudent use of natural resources. No business should escape that responsibility," Fery said.

Maynard seeks sheriff's job

RENO - Real estate broker and appraiser W.W. (Tex) Maynard has announced his candidacy for Washoe County sheriff. The former chairman of the Regional Planning Commission said he will file his nomination papers today on the Democratic ticket.

"We must expand our efforts to make our streets safe from crime, where your family and mine can come and go without fear for property or person which now is so common in our times," the candidate said.

County incomes below average

If you live in Nevada or Placer counties, chances are you made less money during the 1968 calender year than the average Californian, according to figures released this week by the state franchise tax board.

Californians averaged, said the report, $10,676 adjusted gross income on personal income tax returns, while Nevada County residents averaged $8,810 and Placer residents $9,945. (the tax board compiles income figures yearly, with the above figures for 1968 based on returns due on April 15, 1969.)

The $10,676 average for statewide incomes is almost $1,000 more than for the previous year. Growth in the average tax per return rose to $260 from $236.

At the same time, total adjusted gross income rose from $53 billion to $57 billion and the total tax assessed increased from $958 million to $1.06 billion.

The increase in average adjusted gross income per return from $9,724 to $10,676 was attributed to several factors. Principal among these is the change in the State's filing requirements, which eliminated a large group of taxpayers at the lower end of the income scale. This, coupled with inflation and the fact that 1968 was a prosperous year for most Californians, accounted for the unusual increase, according to Martin Huff, executive officer of the board, said.

Placer County ranked 19 among all California counties in adjusted gross income per return, while Nevada County ranked 33.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS DIVISION OF HIGHWAYS

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the State Highway Engineer, Room 5101, Public Works Building, Sacramento, California, until 2 o'clock p.m. on June 10, 1970, at which time they will be publicly opened and read in the Assembly Room of said building, for construction on State highway in accordance with the specifications therefor, to which special reference is made, as follows:

Nevada County, at various locations between 5.4 miles east of Truckee and 0.7-mile east of Floriston (03-Nev-80-20.4-28.6), 4 bridges to be redecked.

Full compensation for additional costs occassioned by compliance with these provisions shall be considered as included in the prices paid for the various contract items of work and no additional compensation will be allowed therefor.

Plans, specifications, and proposal forms for bidding this project can only be obtained at the office of the State Highway Engineer, Public Works Building, Sacramento, California, and may be seen at the offices of the State Highway Engineer at Sacramento, and the District Engineers at Los Angeles, San Francisco, and the district in which the work is situated.

Pursuant to Section 1770 of the Labor Code, the Department has ascertained the general prevailing rate of wages in the county in which the work is to be done, to be as listed in the Department of Public Works, Division of Highways publication General Prevailing Wage Rates, dated April, 1970.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
COUNTY OF NEVADA
BOARD OF SUPERVISORS
MINUTES, MAY 19, 1970

Meeting called to order at 10:00 A.M., all Supervisors were noted as present.

Minutes of the previous meeting approved.

The Board held a Public Hearing on the proposed precise rezoning of Lake of the Pines Ranchos, Unit No. 2, to establish an "R-1-A-B-5AC" District.

No one appeared in favor or opposition, the hearing was closed, and the Board approved the zoning, and requested that the appropriate ordinance be created and presented for adoption.

The Board held a Public Hearing on the proposed precise rezoning of Deer Creek Park Unit 1-A subdivision, to establish an "R-1-B-X" District.

Lots are a minimum of 10,000 square feet, and some are as large as a half acre.

The question arose, of the Boards order that lots smaller than one acre would be sewered.

Four individuals spoke in opposition to the zoning, no one appeared in favor. The public hearing was closed, and the Board voted to send the matter back to the Planning Commission, recommending that they negotiate with the developer in good faith to do something to either increase the lot sizes or to develop a sewer system for the project.

LEGAL NOTICE

The Board directed the County Counsel to prepare an emergency ordinance requiring everything under one acre to be sewered.

The Board held a Public Hearing on the proposed precise rezoning of Manor View, a proposed subdivision, to establish an "R-1-B-X" District, and an "R-2-B-20" District.

Septic Tanks are proposed in this development. Some of the lots are under one acre.

Three individuals appeared in opposition to the rezoning, no one appeared in favor, and the public hearing was closed.

The matter was referred back to the Planning Department, and the Planning Commission, to negotiate with the subdivider in good faith.

A Mr. Bob Watson appeared, to request permission to bring garbage into Nevada County from Placer County. Mr. Watson proposed to operate and maintain the Washington Dump, in a manner satisfactory to the Forest Service, in exchange for the privilege to dump there. He was to discuss this matter with the Forest Service, and report his findings to the Board. Mr. Watson was the low bidder on five contracts from the U.S. Government, to pick up garbage in campgrounds. No official action taken on this matter.

The Board adopted Resolution 70-124 (A Resolution amendment to the Authorized Personnel Resolution of the Nevada General Hospital).

The County Counsel presented the following proposed Resolutions, and ordinance, which were adopted:

Ordinance No. 479 (An Ordinance amending the Nevada County Code, to provide that all lots containing less than one net acre shall be connected to a sanitary sewerage system and that all lots containing more than one acre of net area shall have sewage disposal conforming to the regulations of the Nevada County Health Department, and any State laws and County Ordinance pertaining thereto, with connections provided for each lot in the Subdivision to a sanitary sewerage system where available or required by the County Health Department).

Resolution 70-125 (A Resolution authorizing acceptance and recordation of a Deed from Ernest and Anabel Struckman - Perimeter Road).

Resolution 70-126 (A Resolution authorizing execution of a Joint Exercise of Powers Agreement between Nevada and Placer Counties, pertaining to the Farm and Home Advisors Services for Nevada and Placer Counties).

The Director of the Department of Public Works presented the report of his Department, as did the Purchasing Agent.

Board recessed for lunch at 12:00 P.M.

AFTERNOON SESSION:

Meeting reconvened at 1:40 P.M., all Supervisors present.

Correspondence presented and considered by the Board.

The following Preliminary Budgets were preliminarily adopted:

Building Maintenance $110,120.00;
Nevada Judicial Court $25,988.00;
County Surveyor $16,300.00;
Central Services $140,863.00;
Personnel Commission $5,459,00;

ORDINANCE NO. 70-03

WHEREAS, Truckee Donner Public Utility District (hereinafter called the "District") is a public utility district duly organized and existing under the Public Utility District Act (hereinafter called the "District Act"), Division 7 of the Public Utilities Code of the State of California, and the Constitution and laws of the State of California; and

WHEREAS, the District, pursuant to the District Act now and for some time has owned and operated an electric public utility system consisting of electric transmission, distribution and service lines and facilities; and

WHEREAS, pursuant to the District Act and to Ordinance No. 64-01, and Ordinance No. 68-04 duly enacted by the board of directors (hereinafter called the "Board of Directors") at special meetings held January 27, 1964 and August 9, 1968, the District and the United States of America (hereinafter called the "Government"), acting through the Administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration (hereinafter called the "Administrator"), have duly entered into a certain loan contract (hereinafter called the "Loan Contract"), dated as of October 28, 1963, and a certain amendment thereto dated as of June 11, 1968, (said loan contract, as so amended being hereinafter called the "Loan Contract"), providing for the sale by the District and the purchase by the Government of two series of the District's general obligation bonds in the aggregate principal amounts of $367,000 and $115,000 to finance the construction by the District of certain electric facilities adding to the District's electric system; and

WHEREAS, pursuant to the Loan Contract, the Board of Directors at special meetings held August 25, 1964 and September 17, 1968, duly adopted Resolutions No. 64-16 and Resolution No. 68-22 relating, respectively, to the first and second of said two series of bonds, fixing the terms and conditions of said series of bonds and the sale thereof to the Government and providing for the levy of taxes for the payment thereof and for a pledge of the net revenues of said electric system, as from time to time improved, bettered and extended, as further security for the payment thereof, and said series of bonds were, upon adoption of the Resolutions relating thereto, issued, sold and delivered to the Government; and

WHEREAS, the District presently desires to borrow an additional amount of not in excess of $130,000 from the Government, acting through the Administrator, to be payable over a period of 35 years at a rate of interest of two per centum per annum, in order to finance certain additional facilities adding to the District's electric system for the purpose of furnishing electric energy to approximately 146 additional consumers; and

WHEREAS, there has been presented to a special meeting of the Board of Directors held May 6th, 1970, an Amendment to the Loan Contract (hereinafter called the "Amendment"), executed on behalf of Government by the Administrator, which provides for an additional loan by the Government to the District in the amount, for the terms and the rate of interest hereinabove referred to, which additional loan will be evidenced by the eventual issuance of general obligation bonds of the District to be issued and sold to the Government pursuant to a resolution to be adopted by the Board of Directors: and

WHEREAS, the full faith and credit of the District supported by the District's taxing powers to the maximum extent provided for by law will be pledged to the payment of such general obligation bonds and such bonds will be secured, equally and ratably with the two series bonds in aggregate principal amounts of, respectively, $367,000 and $115,000 heretofore sold to the Government, by a pledge of the net revenues of the District's electric system, as from time to time approved, bettered and extended; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Directors have found and determined that it is necessary and convenient that the District borrow said additional sum of $130,000 upon the terms and conditions specified in the Loan Contract, as amended by the Amendment; and

WHEREAS, the Amendment has been read by the secretary of the District to said special meeting of the Board of Directors, held May 6th, 1970, and has been considered by the board section by section, and has been approved by counsel for the District.

NOW, THEREFORE:

BE IT ENACTED BY THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF TRUCKEE DONNER PUBLIC UTILITY DISTRICT:

Airport Manager Gordon Reddall presented plans at the recent meeting for a large central Lodging faciilty costing $240,000. They will install an 8" water line to serve the proposed complex; electrical facilities are already available.

A water tank site and access road has now been grnted to the P.U.D. by Mssrs. Herzog and Butler. Negotiations will begin soon for the 250,000 gallon tank construction. It will serve the Ponderosa Paiisades and Sierra Meadows general area and will tie in with the South Side System.

Frank Giovannoni and Ralph Gromer from Sierra Pacific Power Co. were present and the possibility of leasing, for emergency use, a standby substation transformer was discussed. This would serve the proposed substation to serve the Donner Lake area.

There will be a special meeting with Lakeworld Development Co. to discuss the electric contract. There is a good possibility of the conductor being instalied underground and the costs at this time are unknown.

The well at Donner Creek is now under construction and the second well located at Trimont will begin soon.

The 10" water line is being completed, surfacing and general cleanup will follow soon.

Regular meetings 1st and 3rd Tuesday of the month, 7:30 p.m.

News from Floriston

By PHYLLIS MacMURRAY

May 16 represented a full day of anticipation and excitment as the MacMurray family made their way to Orangevale, Calif. (Sacramento area) to participate in the annual Pow Wow Days parade. This was the third year for 12-year-old Terrisa, and dressed in her sequined western outfit, she returned home with an over all 2nd place ribbon. Two hours before parade time, Terrisa mounted her filly in hopes of finding a good friend of hers, George Morey of Truckee. George and his wife were a welcome sight to each of us, wearing their usual smiles and dressed in matching outfits.

Several months ago a flag of the United States was donated to the town of Floriston and was recently hung on the east wall of the out school house. How large a flag, that they can't fly it from our flag pole? Approximately 70 feet across.

House 34 might be a little upsidedown during the seven day absence of mother, Wanda Smith, who entered Tahoe Forest Hospital for surgery last Friday, and is scheduled to return home on Wednesday. Wanda, husband Clifford, and 3 children are former residents of Truckee.

Weekend activities for the younger set would have begun Friday evening when Harriet Barrett walked through town explaining to neighborhood children that she really wasn't a clown, but that the costume was for the Sadie Hawkins dance at the Truckee High Saturday. Carolyn Smith and Daphne MacMurray joined their Brownie troop for an all day camporee at Sugar Pine Point Park.

Forest Service revises study

The US forest Service has released an updated version of a 1962 management plan for Forest Service lands in the Lake Tahoe basin for intensified management of public lands for the protection and improvement of the lake basin.

Titled "Multiple Use Management Plan for National Forest Lands in the Lake Tahoe Basin," the plan involves portions of three national forests: Eldorado, Tahoe and Toiyabe.

The plan involved a study of the total environment of the lake basin including soils, air, water, recreation and esthetics, timber, fish and wildlife, transportation, fire control and special land uses.

The 56–page report is designed for use of the Forest Service, but acknowledges that since 50 per cent of the land at the lake is Forest Service land active cooperation is needed among federal, state, county, and local agencies and citizens groups. The plan was devised with the total Lake Tahoe environment and all agencies and private parties in mind.

Air pollution comes into the Forest Serving planning for the first time in the report. It states that acceptable levels of air pollution will be established, and pollution will be controlled or eliminated where harmful or hazardous to humans, animals and plants. Noise from power tools and heavy equipment may be incompatible with public use, the report observes.

Water will continue to be the most important produce of the National Forests at Lake Tahoe and the demand for high quality water will continue to increase, the report says. Watershed protection and management will be intensified to meet the needs for water.

Quoting findings of the 1980 Tahoe Regional Plan, the report says the demand for recreational facilities will increase rapidly.

The section on recreation states that only 12 miles of the Lake Tahoe shoreline is open to the public.

"The use of this limited public shoreline has increased greatly and the area is becoming overcrowded. Public access to the lake, therefore, will continue to be limited if public ownership is not increased,' says the report.

Winter sports facilities increased from six areas in 1950 to 17 in 1968 and the basin will have to be studied further for future expansion of ski areas. However, the report said no ski areas will be permitted where they will harm the appearance of the basin or create hazards to the environment.

Tower controversy

"There are other factors which our board must consider," Reddall stated. "Runway 28 is our main runway, the one which we will eventually use for an instrument landing facility. The board must decide if the radio tower presents a threat to instrument navigation and then make its decision known to the FAA."

KTRT had originally planned to build a tower in Martis Valley but was prevented from doing so by the airport district as the antenna represented a potential hazard to naviagation.

The tower now planned by KTRT would be 406 feet high. Crenshaw contends this height would place the top of the tower below the tops of hills on both sides.

A straight-in approach to Truckee by air traffice from Tahoe requires a glide slope through the notch at Brockway Summit and down the natural slope of the hills to the main runway. The path is directly over the proposed tower site.

Squaw open for weekend

After closing the ski season in late April, Squaw Valley will open its doors with its wide range of recreational facilities for guests and tourists over the Memorial Day Weekend.

From Friday until Sunday the worlds largest tramway, the "Squaw Valley Cable Car" will operate from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. for the sightseeing ride up to the still snow capped mountains.

The olympic ice arena will also operate for public skating these three days from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. to 10 p.m.

The Squaw Valley stables will host hay rides for children and close to 100 horses have also been brought to the Squaw Valley meadow for the popular horseback rides.

Various restaurants and bars will operate in Squaw Valley over the Memorial holiday to welcome the many tourists and guests expected in the Tahoe area.

Lake Tahoe, Wednesday, May 27, 1970

BONANZA

Business association officially organized

Articles of incorporation were accepted, board members were elected and the board elected its officers as the Lake Tahoe Business Association became an official non–profit organization Wednesday.

A burst of emotion during discussions saw one board member attempt to resign and leave the meeting. However, the membership did not accept his resignation.

The organizational meeting was a follow–up of a gathering last month of some 150 North Shore business men interested in the development of the community.

"Most of us here tonight are the 'fer' people, not the 'aginers'," said one member as discussions led to the firm agreement of the membership that the "good of the community" was paramount in the work of the association.

Elected to the 11–man board for six–month terms were Fred Schultz, realtor, Incline; Kirk Moon, hardware, Incline; James Humes, North Shore Club, Crystal Bay; Nathan Jacobson, Kings Castle, Incline; Bert Jakobson, realtor, Incline; Jim Parshall, investment–developer, Incline; James Emerick, Kings Beach; Stan Parson, realtor, Kings Beach; Robert Norris, general contractor, Incline; Warren Nelson, Cal–Neva Club, Crystal Bay; and Ray Plunkett, Crystal Bay Club.

Jacobson was named president by the board. Serving with him are Parsons, vice president; Moon, secretary, and Norris, treasurer.

Formed to initiate, sponsor and promote business and community interests on the North Shore, the association established membership and dues structures, voting requirements and quorums.

Two memberships are offered, a non–voting associate membership for employes of businesses at $5 per year and a regular membership for businesses at a minimum of $50 per year per business.

The business dues structure adopted is based on the size and volume of sales or net worth with those up to $100,000 paying $50 per year; from $100,000 to $250,000, $100 per year; from $250,000 to $500,000, $200 per year; from $500,000 to $750,000, $300 per year; from $750,000 to $1 million, $400 per year; over $1 million, $500 per year.

It was decided the dues would be prorated for the balance of this year with full annual dues starting Jan. 1, 1971.

Each membership, regardless of the amount of dues paid, is entitled to one vote thus giving the small, one–man business equal footing with the larger businesses.

Jacobson presided as temporary chairman throughout the organizational meeting. Questioned as to the purpose of the associate membership which does not have a vote, it was explained that these members, being directly involved with business, could "express themselves and are directly involved with what happens here (at association meetings)."

Members unanimously voted that a majority vote would provide the quorum for passage of business on both the board and the membership.

During a discussion when tempers flared, Parshall resigned from the board and left the meeting. However, the membership declined to accept his resignation.

"He's too good a man, we'll have to get him back," remarked one member.

"There are always differences of opinions, misconstruances of opinions," said Jacobson.

"I want this association to succeed. The association is more important than individuals."

"It's not what we can get, it's what we can do and give in the way of proper development," Jacobson concluded.

At a board meeting following the membership meeting discussion arose as to press coverage of the board meetings. It was unanimously voted that all meetings would be open to the press except special executive sessions as called by the board. The board will also schedule and call general membership meetings.

Jacobson appointed Parsons and Norris to meet with him next week to set up committees.

Parsons suggested "screening" a committee headed by a board member and manned by general membership to hear members and associates who want to present problems.

Schultz suggested a public relations committee which he said was most important to the success of the association.

"I want to commend you," said Jacobson. "You've hit upon the two most vital areas to get this association under way."

Jacobson suggested committees were also needed to "draw up our objectives," to handle the association's community services and to select a legal counsel.

In conclusion Jacobson said he would call a board meeting, probably in two weeks. He said also he would see that membership cards and membership applications forms would be made up and available as soon as possible.

Commission tables Crystal Towers action

– Action on the tentative subdivision plat for a seven – story concrete condominium at Crystal Bay has been tabled for two weeks by the Regional Planning Commission of Washoe County.

The subject of growing controversy, the nine–unit condominium project at Crystal Bay between Lake Tahoe Boulevard and the shoreline is in violation of height restrictions, lot setbacks, parking requirements and the intent of the original building permit, some officials and conservationists charge.

Kenneth Riley, developer, is now seeking approval of a tentative subdivision plat, although none was required when he started.

Many of the other restrictions, such as the height limit, were adopted by Tahoe agencies after construction had started last fall.

Described as "the baggie" by South Lake Tahoe Councilman William (Wink) Ames, the project's plat must be considered "on its merits only" according to an opinion given the Regional Planning Commission by a district attorney's opinion.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Cindy Birdsong, 25-year-old member of the Supremes singling group, was married Sunday to Charles D. Hewlett of Tulsa, Okla., a dental supply firm executive.

IVGID can boost its rates

A raise in Incline Village water and sewer rates was granted last week in a decision handed down by the Nevada Public Service Commission.

The raise will bring in an estimated $90,000 more a year to the Incline Village General Improvement District.

District Manager W.W. (Wally) White the raise will not affect the average homeowner among the district's 900 customers, but instead will "jack up the apartments and condominiums." White said some of the latter have been paying less than private home owners.

The PSC also directed the IVGID to continue installation of water meters thus eventually eliminating flat rate charges.

IVGID requested charges of $3 for fire hydrants was lowered to $2 and sewer connection requested charges of $250 was lowered to $125 by the PSC.

OPEN FOR BUSINESS – District Manager W. W. (Wally) White talks on the telephone from his new office in the just–completed Incline Village General Improvement District Building. The streamlined, walnut panelled, 2500 square–foot building with its adjacent 2500–foot shop building was designed by Incline and San Francisco architect Mike Grady. Office building contains a board and meeting room where board members are seated at a long arc–shaped table to face an audience of 50 or more persons; a general office for employes Barbara Talcott and Ann Vorderbruggen surrounded by private offices for White, Office Manager Kermit McMillin, District Engineer Erik Beyer and Bookkeeper Carolyn McKeeman; conference room, coffee room and office equipment room. One wall of the general office is lined with Built–in open files for individual file folders on each of the approximately 16,000 pieces of property in the district. The shop building contains an office for Service Manager Bill Adams. Built on a two–acres at 895 Southwood Drive, White noted there was plenty of room for expansion as the community and its needs grow. "Who knows, some day it might be the nucleus for a city hall complex, if and when the community gets to that point," said White. He announced the next district board meeting will be held at the new facility on Thursday, May 28. – Incline News Photo

New law firm announces Incline Village office

A full time law firm for the North Tahoe area, Tahoe Lawyers, Ltd., has opened offices at 1000 Tahoe Boulevard (Highway 28 and Country Club), Incline Village.

"We felt there was a definite need for a 'team' which could offer full time service and a wide experience in varied fields of law practice," said Charles E. Springer, former Nevada Attorney General and associate in the new firm.

Staffing Tahoe Lawyers, Ltd. with Springer are attorneys Roger E. Newton and Peter Chase Neumann. The new firm employs a full time secretary and is open five days a week. Springer said a lawyer will be on duty or available at the Incline office most of the time.

Springer, who maintains a second home at Incline, is a long-time member of a law firm in Reno. Trial work, governmental law, personal injury law and wills and estates have been emphasized in his work over the years.

Aside from his former state position, Springer is a former member of the Nevada State Highway Board, State Prisons Board, State Board of Examiners, State Savings and Loan Association Board and was chairman of the State Apprenticeship Council.

A member of both the Nevada and District of Columbia bars for 17 years, he is also a member of the Bar of the United States Supreme Court. Springer, a Democrat who was defeated once in a bid for governor in once in a bid for governor, said he has just learned and is "pleased and proud" that University of Nevada, Reno students are circulating a petition to have his name put on the ballot for governor in the fall elections.

Neumann, 30 is a native of Norfolk, Nebr. He received a BA degree in 1961 from the University of Arizona and in 1964 obtained his law degree from the same university.

For five years Neumann practiced law in Tucson, part of which he served as deputy district attorney. During his Arizona stay, he was president of the Southern Arizona Chapter, American Trial Lawyers; and president of Tucson Young Republicans.

Neumann moved to Reno in 1969 and was admitted to the Nevada bar that same year. He has been practicing in Reno since that time.

Newton has been associated with Springer in Reno for the last 10 years where his trial experience includes personal injury and negligence, contract actions and criminal defenses in both Federal and State courts.

An Oregonian, he received a BS degree from the University of Oregon and his law degree from Willamette University in 1955. he attended University of Utah and Montana State University while in the U.S. Air Corps where he was an air cadet from 1944 to 1946.

Prior to entering law, Newton was a smokejumper squad leader with the U.S. Forest Service. After coming to Reno he taught junior and senior high school.

Admitted to the Nevada Bar in 1959 he entered practice with Attorney Peter Echeverria before becoming associated with Springer the following year. Acting by appointment, Newton has been City Attorney for Gabbs, Nev. continuously since January, 1960.

Drivers escape serious injury in accidents

Two Incline residents escaped serious injury in two separate one-car accidents and a Reno man was arrested on suspicion of marijuana last week in the Incline-Crystal Bay area.

Verna Cayssials was treated and released at Tahoe Forest Hospital after she lost control of her car on winding way. The Jeep Wagoneer she was driving was totaled according to Incline deputies of the Washoe County Sheriff's Office.

Walter Benton received apparently minor injuries when his Jeepster went out of control on Crystal Bay Hill. Deputies report the car flipped and came to rest on its top.

Arrested on suspicion of possession of marijuana was Stanley G. Samproni of Reno. Samproni was arrested after he and his wife were given a lift in a jeep.

Deputies report they stopped the Jeep and asked Samproni for identification after seeing the couple picked up near Hidden Beach. At that time, deputies noticed a plastic bag of a green leafy substance in Samproni's shirt pocket. Booked at the Incline substation, Samproni later posted $1,500 bail. His wife was not held.

Deputies report in another incident that Jack Lee Bowers of Campbell, Calif. had to be subdued with Mark IV Mace when arrested during an altercation at Kings Castle Casino.

Deputies were called to the scene to find Bowers, wearing a hunting knife in his belt, threatening Security Officer Warren Mathews and "beligerant and incoherant." In attempting to make the arrest, deputies report Bowers attempted to belt them with his belt buckle. Finally subdued, he was booked at Incline Substation where two more knives were found on his person. Bowers was booked for carrying a concealed weapon, suspicion of being under influence of narcotics and suspicion of possession of narcotics. He was later transported to the Washoe County Jail at Reno.

In other Sheriff's office work, deputies issued citations for curfew violations, speeding and infractions of the "No Parking" zones, expecially in the Hidden Beach area.

Official tells development trend

Recreational developments that, in effect are new communities designed around the total environment are the development trend of the future and enhance rather than degrade the value of land, according to a Boise Cascade official.

The public, by and large, does not realize this, notes John Fery, executive vice president of Boise Cascade, and "it's our responsibility as developers not only to do a good job but to explain what were doing."

Fery, who was at the South Shore Friday to address a Pacific Coast Electrical Association convention, complained that the hue and cry raised by "the preservationists has not been backed up with facts."

"A lot of land developers should be legislated out of business," he stated, however "They just turn over land, without adding any value to it."

Boise Cascade, said by Fery to be the country's largest developer of recreational subdivisions, began in 1957 as the consolidation of two small timber harvesting companies in Boise, Idaho. The operation had $1.7 billion in sales last year, Fery said.

He pointed out that Boise looks for prime land within three or four hours driving time from metropolitan areas, and then improves the property with roads and recreational facilities such as golf courses, tennis courts, marinas and beaches "before any lot is sold."

JOHN FERY

"We also draw on our experience in resources management to guarantee that the ecology of an area will not be significantly disturbed by development," he commented. "But we've still got a lot to learn."

The 40-year-old executive noted that overseeing the operations of such a far-flung company as Boise Cascade keeps him away from home much of the week, but that on weekends he goes skiing or fishing with his wife and three boys.

"I'm a conservationist," he said. "We (Boise) were practicing ecology long before anyone else could spell it," he said, commenting on the company's original operation - timber resources management.

"There is a need for people, particularly the youth of a family, in large cities to experience and enjoy another environment," he stated. "If it is wrong for a company to acquire 6,000 acres, develop 2,000 acres of it and leave the other 4,000 acres in open space then we (Boise) are in the wrong business."

Fery predicted that future developments will become the responsibility of large corporations, "simply because of the large costs involved," including inflation and meeting the needs of ecology. "I foresee a 'General Motors' in the housing industry in the next 10 years," he said.

He said the real "challenge to the developer is to make any land changes consistent with the needs of the consumer and with ecology. The extreme would be not to develop anything."

"The key to a successful development is for the developer to make a commitment to proper planning on day one. Much of the development five years ago wasn't like that," he commented.

"It's not the legitimacy of what we're doing I'm concerned about, but communicating with the concerned public that what we're doing is right and why it is right," he asserted.

"In the 1970s there must be prudent use of natural resources. No business should escape that responsibility," Fery said.

Indian plight knocked for Interior unit

RENO - An 18-year-old Oberlin College, Ohio, coed says the responsibility for the plight of Pyramid Lake Indians rests with the Department of the Interior.

She said the only solution to the Pyramid Lake controversy is improvement of the Newlands Reclamation project.

Miss Bea Van Horne made the remarks Wednesday night at a symposium held at the University of Nevada's Center for Religion and Life.

Crystal Bay Club sale is approved

The Nevada State Gaming Commission last week granted permission for an Ohio corporation to purchase the Crystal Bay Club for approximately $3 million.

The commission approved the licensing of persons holding 22 different corporate offices in U. S. Capital Corp. of Cincinnati, the purchaser. The Ohio corporation was represented by Attorney Mickey Laxalt, brother of Gov. Paul Laxalt.

The commission had previously delayed action on the application pending receipt of more information.

Terms of the license call for the U. S. Capital Corp. to be the parent company with Ohio Real Estate Investment Trust Co. as landlord. The club will be leased back to the present operators, Tahoe Crystal Bay, Inc.

President and director of Tahoe Crystal Bay, Inc. is Lawrence W. Dunning. He is also chairman of the board, treasurer and director of the parent U. S. Capital Corp. and president and trustee of the landlord group, Ohio Real Estate Investment Trust Co.

Incline home owners face dilemma

Some 70 home owners in the Incline Beach area who must connect to sewage by Dec. 31, 1971 are 'trying to work out something reasonable for everyone" according to Roy Robinette, a homeowner in the area.

The homeowners involved are not in the Incline Village General Improvement District. They are faced with a dilema caused the federal madate to export sewage by the above date and a 1967 Nevada Stauate which will not allow an improvement district financed by assessment bonds to charge an annexation fee.

Robinette said the beach homeowners have a choice of joining the district, contracting on an expanded service basis or forming a separate district.

He said the general feeling is the home owners do not want to join the district and "have the financial obligations that have been created there."

However, they have been considering formation of a district, Robinette said. He said they are awaiting a ruling from the Nevada Public Service Commission as to what the IVGID can do about the problem.

Both Robinette and IVGID Manager W. W. White agree there is a need for a change in the Nevada law to allow the district to charge for newcomers.

"It is not fair to the people in the district to let out-of-the district properties in and not require payment for it," said White.

Robinette, who supported the Nevada law enacted in 1967, said he would seek its revision at the next legislative session.

Should the beachfront homeowners form a new district, it would have its own collection and pump systems and contract to IVGID for one pickup point from where the effluent would be piped to the treatment plant and exported from the basin.

Robinette indicated the property owners are anxious to connect and willing to assume the cost of a collection system.

ARTISTRY IN WEAVING TOO – Judy Berry, left and Bing Burnham check a loom and partly finished rug which will be an entry in the North Lake Tahoe Art Festival at the Racquet Club Aug. 7, 8 and 9. Looms and weaving, ceramics and sculptures, paints and canvas all add up to art, artists and a festival says Karen Jones. Mrs. Jones and Lynn Armstrong are heading the project which is already receiving entries from numerous places. Mrs. Jones announced artists and photographers of Sierra Nevada College at Incline will have a special display section. She said also, Ruth Barnett of Sparks will be on hand to demonstrate the art of "throwing" pots on her potters wheel. Anyone wishing to enter may call Mrs. Jones at 702-831-1353. Entry fee is $3.

Incline 'friends' organize

A volunteer group to assist both the county and school libraries located at Incline Elementary School has been formed.

Meeting last week at the library, Friends of the Incline Libraries organized and named Renee Galli and Eileen Meuris as cochairmen. They will be assisted by Elaine Mastin, secretary; Carolyn Lind, treasurer and Janet Jones, publicity.

Purpose of the group is to assist both libraries in every way possible and start making plans for the future when the county library will have to seek new quarters of its own.

As a first activity the group visited the Sparks Washoe County Library and inspected its facilities.

The group is open to the public and anyone interested is welcome to join. Further information may be obtained by calling 831-0288.

Attending the organizational meeting besides officers elected were Ruth May, Mary Busick, Jeannette Dow, Betty van Heyst, Betty Zenzic, Faye Blackwell and Librarian Audrey Anderson.

New officers named to head guild

New officers were elected at the last meeting of St. Francis of Assisi Guild. The meeting was held at the home of Madline Scott.

Claudette Symes was named president. She will be assisted by Genevieve Brockelsby, vice president; Gerry Sargent, secretary and Cynthia Smith, treasurer.

Installation will be held during a luncheon, Wednesday, June 10, 11:30 a.m. at the Racquet Club. All members and women of the parish are invited.

Space study might help earth problems

Dr. Wernher von Braun (left) discusses environmental studies and space technology with Dr. Michael J. Rzasa, chairman of The University of Akron's Environmental Studies Committee and vice president for academic affairs. Von Braun appeared on the campus as one of five Town & Gown lecturers, marking AU's Centennial theme: The urban university—key to the future.

Dr. Wernher von Braun, Deputy Associate Administrator for Planning for NASA, said at the University of Akron recently that the space program in its study of hostile environment may provide solutions to the problem of a hostile earth environment, noisy, over crowded, and polluted with foul air and water.

"The space programs involve survival in an environment that is either hostile by nature, like outer space, or hostile because of things man himself has caused. There is a great deal of similarity, there's no question about it," von Braun stated.

He said that he was gratified at the tremendous awareness among the public, particularly among the young, concerning our environment. "People are suddenly aware of the fact that this reckless dumping of refuse in the rivers, reckless chopping down of trees, or establishing strip mines and so forth, that this can't go on forever.

In comparing space technology to environmental technology, von Braun said that in some respects solving the problems of ecology are far more difficult. "There were no conflicts of human interest involved in putting a man on the moon. The moon isn't owned by anyone. We were not stepping on anyone's right-of-way by getting there," he said.

"Now, when you look at some of our environmental problems today, it's not quite that simple. You take dumping refuse in the rivers—factories that rightfully are accused of being reckless in this respect. They have to survive against other companies who are producing the same product. If you saddle one company in this competitive environment with a local ordinance, saying that they can't dump their refuse into the river in which they have been dumping it for 25 years, and the same legislation doesn't apply to their competitor, you might destroy the company," he explained.

"Let me give you an entirely different example," von Braun continued. "The people in Los Angeles complain about the smog. There is a very, very simple answer to abolishing smog in Los Angeles. Make it a law that no one is permitted to drive his automobile, and the smog will disappear overnight. You can't do that for obvious reasons. You see, this is not a scientific or technological problem, but a problem of human relations of conflicting human interests."

University of Akron President Norman P. Auburn has appointed a campus committee to study the advisability of establishing a Center for Environmental Studies where conflicting human interests related to ecology might be resolved. The interdisciplinary committee composed of faculty and students is chaired by Dr. Michael J. Rzasa, former dean of AU's College of Engineering and now Vice President for Academic Affairs.

Gamblers Anonymous praised

SEATTLE (AP) – Ex-gambler Terry X says his last big gamble–on the organization called Gamblers Anonymous–has paid off.

Terry, now 48, went to GA in 1963 straight from a San Francisco bridge where he had contemplated a suicide leap.

He received a GA five-year pin Tuesday night, signifying abstention from such things as dice, poker and horse racing for half a decade.

Terry said in an interview he had been a compulsive gambler from boyhood, had been alienated from his family, divorced by his wife and was fresh from a prison term for embezzlement and writing bad checks when he decided to give GA a try.

Now he is one of 20 or so regulars who attend weekly GA meetings at a Seattle church.

The members share their experiences in an effort to turn others away from gambling. The chapter is part of a Los Angeles–based national organization which took its cue from Alcoholics Anonymous.

Terry described the typical compulsive gambler as a pathological liar with a personality flaw which may embody a masochistic desire to lose.

"Sooner or later he'll run afoul of the law, brought on by the fact he needs money," Terry said. "Our job is to start him on the business of growing up.

"Numerically, we're not a smashing success. But some people in our group have come back from the brink of disaster."

Terry himself, for example, has remarried his former wife and become a successful equipment salesman.

Government would triple enriched bread iron content

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government proposes tripling the amount of iron in enriched bread to combat fatigue and low resistance to disease which iron deficiency anemia produced in many women and children, particularly the poor. Specialists have yet to firmly estimate how widespread iron deficiency is.

But Dr. Philip L. White, secretary of the American Medical Association's council on food and nutrition, said "Iron deficiency anemia is one of the major nutritional problems of teenage girls, and indeed adult women as well," in testimony to the select Senate Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs.

The Agriculture Department surveyed diets of 15,000 persons one day in 1965. It found that 23 per cent of boys 12 to 14, and 33 per cent of women and girls 9 to 54 received less than recommended allowances of iron. White and the Agriculture Department both found these conditions especially affected the poor.

One irony of iron deficiency is that as the nation's technology advances, the iron content of the diet diminishes.

Because iron speeds oxidation - and thus food spoilage - processors have become increasingly efficient at eliminating iron from food.

Bleaching and processing bread flour, for instance, reduces its iron content by mere than two-thirds.

The primary sources of iron are bread and meat.

Little can be done to enrich the iron content of meat. That's one reason the Food and Drug Administration, at the urging of the National Academy of Sciences and the baking and milling industry, has proposed that the amount of iron added to enriched bread and flour be tripled.

The Food and Nutrition Board of the national Academy of Sciences has also proposed enrichment for cereal grains, but no action has been taken on these proposals.

The recommended daily iron requirements for adult men and women is from 5 to 10 milligrams. The daily requirement for women during menstruation jumps to the 7 to 20 milligram range. For adolescents the requirement is 10 to 20 milligrams. And for pregnant women the requirement is 20 to 48 milligrams, which can be satisfied only with special supplements.

Extended or severe iron shortage leads to anemia, constant fatigue and increased susceptibility to disease.

The FDA presently limits the amount of iron in a one-pound leaf of enriched bread to from 13 to 16.5 milligrams. The amount of iron permitted in enriched flour is from 8 to 12.5 milligrams per pound.

In response to the baker's proposal, the FDA has proposed changing the tolorances to 50 to 60 milligrams for enriched bread and flour would not be affected. Bakers and millers say the changes would not affect the taste, texture or appearance of bread.

Conversely, the FDA still has before it a four-year-old proposal to limit the amount of iron in fortified cereals to 1.5 milligrams per one-ounce serving.

Some popular brands of raisin bran, bran flakes and highly fortified cereals have substantially more than 1.5 milligrams of added iron per serving.

The FDA proposal on breakfast cereals was offered before nationwide concern over hunger and malnutrition. A report on it is due June 1.

Beautiful railroad route

HURRICANE GULCH, Alaska (AP) – The blue and gold train, named the Aurora, inched around the blind curve of the mountain and rolled ever so cautiously onto the spindly trestle.

Below, 300 feet, a turquoise creek rippled between banks of alabaster ice etched with the nervous paw prints of small creatures. Off to the west Mt. McKinley's pink-white crags, loftiest in the hemisphere, pressed against a cobalt sky. To the north haughty Dall sheep raised their curled horns at the train's approach and glowered in silent disapproval from their lambing grounds across a steep canyon.

Chuck Cameron remarked, "We're about halfway."

Halfway? Cameron, the engineer, explained that Hurricane Gulch was about halfway between Ancorage and Fairbanks, the two passenger terminals of the Alaska Railroad, 356 miles apart.

Had he wished to refer to its psychological distance from the world's turmoils and hatreds, from Parrot's Beak and Kent State and Wall Street, he undoubtedly would have said all the way.

And, at times, adventure. At one point on the route, where the train hugs the side of narrow, twisting Nenana Canyon south of Fairbanks, the tracks are laid on permafrost. With every summer thaw they move. Three years ago they slid three feet down the mountain side in one 12-hour period.

In winter, which is usually, snow crews must continually plow a furror the length of the railbelt through drifts deep enough to hide a telegraph pole.

The railroad's main hazard, though, is one for which 60 years of experience has found no solution. Moose.

"We were very lucky," Dr. Newkirk said in a telephone interview. "The sky was very dark, darker than during most eclipses and the air was very tranquil and extremely clear."

Newkirk took the photograph at an altitude of 8,800 feet, about 30 miles southwest of the small community of San Carlos Yautepec, Mexico, with a 10 second exposure.

The total eclipse was seen, weather permitting, along a 100-mile wide path across Mexico the eastern edges of the United States, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

The key to the detailed quality of the photograph is the filter Newkirk used.

The crucial problem in photographing the turbulent, gaseous corona is to compensate for the great variation in brightness of the corona at the edge of the sun and the lesser brightness as it streams out into space.

Newkirk used a special filter – "extremely difficult to manufacture" – that gradually darkens toward its center to provide an even film exposure for the entire corona. The filter compensated for a difference in brightness of about 1,000 to 1.

This filter was installed on a white-light telescope and the telescope centered precisely on the sun during the brief period of totality.

The resulting photograph improved on one Newkirk made on Nov. 12, 1966, from an eclipse observing site at an altitude of 13,000 feet on a high desert of Bolivia.

The scientific purpose of the experiment, Newkirk said, is to compare the structure of the corona to measurements of the sun's magnetic fields to see how the two interact.

"There is good cause to believe that solar magnetic forces exert a moulding influence on the ionized charged gases of the corona, concentrating their flow into streamers and other high density structures."

We've got what it takes!

Six steps outlined for potential inventors

Have you ever thought of a better way to do an essential job, to see exactly how something could be done more simply and efficiently? Many people have; you would be surprised at their numbers.

In fact, probably everyone has invented something in his or her mind at one time or another. The difference is some people do something about it and others don't and chances are good that one of your neighbors is an inventor – if you aren't one yourself!

Each year, more and more inventors are contributing to new product development and probably a lot more would if they knew what to do and where to go.

Product technology companies which help individuals develop and commercialize their inventions for presentation to industry are constantly on the lookout for good ideas. But, many individuals are unaware of the steps necessary to safeguard and market an invention. Through the experience of The Raymond Lee Organization, a New York specialist in the field, six steps are offered:

1. After becoming aware of the fact that you have an idea for a possibly marketable product, have a preliminary product investigation conducted. You should consider products that have been patented and/or marketed that may be similar to your invention.

2. Be sure your invention is not merely a variation of an existing idea. It should be genuinely new or an actual improvement.

3. Review the the advertising and packaging limitations of your invention. It may be commercially acceptable but not suited for advertising or packaging.

4. Investigate an "international right of priority" which can be established on your invention. This will allow greater development possibilities outside the United States.

5. Study the market possibilities of your invention. Quite often a new invention may have all the earmarks of commercial success but be unmarketable or have very limited possibilities.

6. Be certain that your idea is one that a manufacturer can easily adopt to existing manufacturing operations. Rarely will a manufacturer want to invest in new equipment to make the item you are offering.

While inventions are created in research laboratories of industry and government, some of the best inventions in history have come from individuals working in basement and home workshops. Business and industry are always on the lookout for these. For a free folio on "How To Develop & Market Your Invention" write The Raymond Lee Organization, 230 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10017.

Life at its Best

By Marie Patterson
"Best in Life" series Channel 10

Malnutrition is a contributing factor to frayed nerves and lack of vitality and energy.

Shattered nerves and diseases of all kinds could be avoided if people would eat properly and take care of their bodies by observing the laws of health. These laws are quite simple - Simple, and without cost, from a monetary standpoint, they are true remedies for many of the physical and mental problems in life. They will cost effort and a change of habit patterns, which proves more difficult for some than others. Each week, we will begin with pure fresh air and it's value to you.

Last Wednesday, on local Channel 10, we showed you how to make your own yeast breads. We had a number of sizes and shapes. It's real fun and oh so good tasting! We made 100 per cent whole wheat bread and rolls, as well as soy-sesame. The latter is a good way to introduce a coarser bread than some are used to; that is if they have been used to the fluffy white breads.

Many have no problem changing over to 100 per cent whole wheat and coarser breads, and appreciate their delicious flavor from the start. I also want to mention that the flour you use can make a great deal of difference in your bread. If you change from one brand of whole wheat to another, you may need to adjust your recipe. I hope to be able to have an excellent bread flour available for you soon.

SOY SESAME BREAD & ROLLS

2 c. warm water
2 T cold-pressed oil
1 T yeast
¾ c. soyflour
1 t liquid lecithin
one-third c. honey
2 t salt
2 C pastry flour
3½ C hard unbleached flour
¼ C sesame meal

Except for soy flour, mix flour together. Mix liquid ingredients and add one half the flour, beat and then add the yeast liquid. Stir well and add all but one cup of remaining flour, beat. Put remaining flour on board, pour dough onto flour and bringing flour up over dough; knead well, pushing hard against dough.

When kneaded smooth and flour used, knead in soy flour. Soy flour must be added after gluten is developed by kneading. Oil large pan or bowl, warmed, and set in warm place to raise. (Not too warm) When double, beat down and make into loaves or rolls. Let rise double and bake at 375 degrees for 15 minutes. and lower to 350 for 45 minutes for loaves and 20 minutes for rolls.

100 PER CENT WHOLE WHEAT BREAD OR ROLLS

1 T yeast
2½ C water
¼ C oil
one-third C honey
2 t salt
2 T sesame meal
5½ C whole wheat flour
1 t lecithin

Prepare yeast liquid the same as above recipe. Also mix by same method, kneading well. Oil pans for both recipes well with a few drops of oil and slight amount of lecithin. This will make bread come out of pans easy.

When you cut off lump of dough, take amount to fill pan one half full. Roll it smooth, then flatten in oiled pan and turn over. This will slightly oil top crust when cooked. Turn out of pans immediately after baked. Do not cover until thoroughly cold!

Good luck! See you Wednesday at 3 p.m. on local Channel 10.

Riding clinic offered

DAVIS – Experienced and intermediate equestrians will have an opportunity to improve their riding ability and learn techniques for teaching riding to others in "Riding Rating," a course offered by University of California Davis Extension this summer.

The riding clinic will provide intensive instruction by a number of experienced instructors in both western and hunt seat. Night discussions will center around the theory behind riding.

According to Mrs. Margaret Williams, riding instructor and owner of Arroyo Stables in Los Angeles, the course is being offered in an attempt to set standards that equestrians should meet before they begin to teach riding to others. She is working with the American Association of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation to set up a feasible program whereby riding teachers will eventually be certified by the states and colleges, after passing tests similar to the ones being offered in "Riding Rating."

"The way riding instruction is set up now," she states, "anyone can teach, whether they know about riding and the theories behind it or not. People who want to learn how to ride," she continues, "often are mistaught by those who themselves do not know correct riding form.

Minus 260 degree cargo

NEW YORK, N.Y.—Those icy waves along the eastern seaboard this winter were like balmy warm spells compared with a supercold 260 degrees below zero which they are bringing about at Staten Island.

What! 260 degrees below zero!

Sure enough. But not so that any resident of Staten Island will feel it, or even know anything about it.

The 260 degrees below zero Fahrenheit is the temperature of a tanker-load of liquefied natural gas imported by Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation from North Africa as an outgrowth of the severe winter along the eastern seaboard.

The shipment — first importation of LNG into the New York metropolitan area — was needed because of the heavy drain put on underground storage facilities by the severe winter.

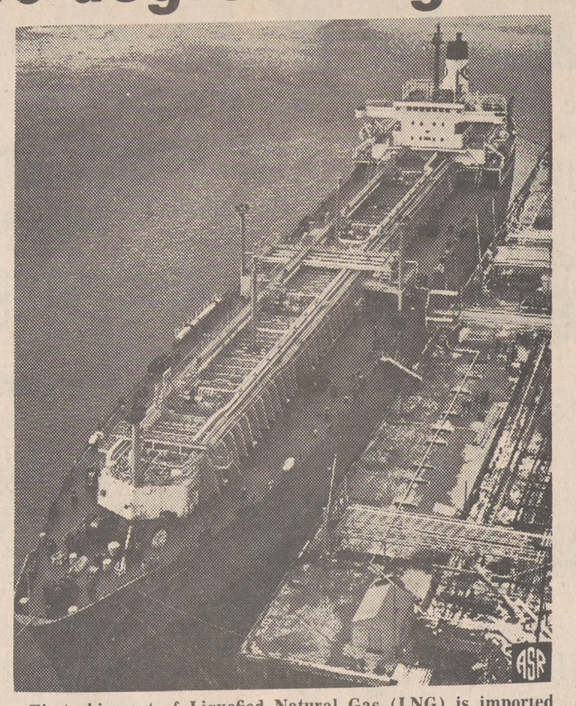
That supercold temperature is well within the ultracold realm of cryogenics, the field that made possible mankind's first flights to the moon.

In this curious world of cryogenics temperatures never rise above the minus 150-degree mark on the Fahrenheit scale. It's a realm of near-fantasy, where a rubber ball will shatter rather than bounce, where electric currents can flow forever without the slightest resistance, and where even the law of gravity seems to lose a part of its punch.

Helium, for instance, reduced to liquid at temperatures approaching absolute zero (459 degrees below zero Fahrenheit), refuses to stay in an open container and will actually flow uphill to escape.

Until recent times, the world of cryogenics existed only in the laboratory. It was created in the test tube and there it remained for almost 80 years.

Only in the past two decades or so has this fast-growing science become not only the means of fueling spaceships, but also a working part of everyday living in the United States. Liquid nitrogen at 321 degrees below zero, for example, is used to quick-freeze vegetables and meat. Vegetables such as corn can be frozen so quickly that ice crystals have no time to form.



First shipment of Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) is imported into the New York metropolitan area by Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation. The tanker Esso Brega prepares to dock at a berth on Staten Island, New York, carrying a cargo of 240,000 barrels of LNG, which has a temperature of minus 260 degrees Fahrenheit. The gas is to be delivered into the company's 600,000 barrel capacity storage terminal located nearby.

LNG's mobility and ease of storage are giving global scope to the natural gas industry, providing a base for higher standards of living in energy-short nations. Tanker-loads of natural gas in the liquid stage will be able to heat and cool their homes, power their industrial complexes and provide the fuel needed to turn their electrical power plant generators.

What's more, because LNG is high in energy content and burns cleaner than conventional fuels, it is now being burned in fleets of automobiles and offers keen promise for buses, trains and other modes of transportation. It likewise offers promise as one of the fuels for giant supersonic airliners of the future. It is uniquely adaptable to high-altitude flights, since it is comparatively light in weight and unaffected by the chilly temperatures encountered on the fringes of space.

Surcharge for 'hot' automobiles

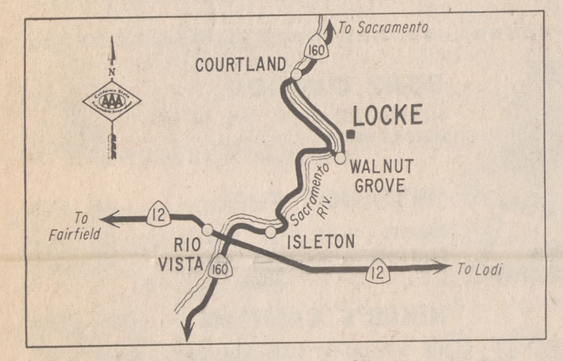
The California Automobile Association announced today that it will apply a surcharge on high performance cars. The surcharge, effective July 1, will amount to 25 per cent and will apply to bodily injury, property damage, collision coverages and medical payments.

CSAA Inter-Insurance Bureau has defined high performance cars as those having a weight-horsepower ratio of 11 to 1 or lower.

When a car has an engine which can attain speeds of 120 or more miles an hour on the road, and can accelerate from a standing start to 60 miles per hour in less than eight seconds, it contains elements of danger not possessed by ordinary cars, the CSAA says.

The combination of these hot cars and aggressive drivers leads to more accidents, reports the CSAA, and these drivers exist in all age groups. Recent figures show that its loss ratio was 50 per cent higher for high performance cars than for standard cars, the CSAA said.

A similar loss experience has been reported by other insurance carriers, and many companies have already adopted surcharges for these high performance cars ranging from 20 to 50 per cent.



Locke looks like Huck Finn setting

LOCKE - Out in the Delta country of San Joaquin County, where there are lots of lazy sloughs and fishing spots, there's a lazy little town that is hard to believe.

It has maybe 300 Chinese residents and a few non-Orientals, it looks like a setting for Huck Finn and the habitat of one of Mark Twain's riverboat adventures. It's the town of Locke, says the California State Automobile Association, located just north of Walnut Grove.

As you walk down the narrow street that comprises most of the town you're apt to see an elderly Chinese man duck down one of the narrow walkways as if to avoid meeting you. The weathered wooden stores and houses are dilapidated but they're charming.

Locke had its beginning about 1916 when fire destroyed much of the Chinatown of Walnut Grove so the Chinese moved a mile up river and built a new settlement. The name derives from an early-day rancher named George Locke who owned the land.

The Chinese came to this area to work the rich farms as laborers and some also helped build the system of levees. Most of those who settled in Locke were members of the Young Wan Tong.

Today the Chinese living here either work locally, in nearby Walnut Grove, or in Sacramento about 30 miles north of Locke. There are a few stores on the town's main street and they're straight out of the 1930s. One restaurant, Al's Place, is quite popular with visitors and local people and a new one has just recently opened. It is located on the River Road, the highway that passes through the town.

During the years when 5,000 people lived in Locke, it had 10 boarding houses, several Chinese herb stores, three chop suey restaurants, a bath house, two dry godds stores and a movie house. Not much remains now but the old wooden buildings with their spindly pillars supporting upstairs porches are still there.

Locke is fun to walk through. It makes older people think of their days of youth in small quiet towns and it will make the youngsters think they are stalking the set of an old Western movie.

Want to preserve old planes

BUENA PARK - Responding to a recent plea by Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe to clean up the nation's airports by removing old aircraft, Movieworld Planes of Fame said it would like to save some of the old planes from the scrap heap.

"We are always looking for old planes to preserve," said Donald V. Lykins, a Western Air Lines captain and chairman of Planes of Fame. "We already have saved many historic aircraft and have restored to flying condition the last remaining examples of several famous aircraft.

"Before anyone junks any old plane, we hope they will contact us first. Maybe we can preserve it for posterity."

Movieworld Planes of Fame will open in Buena Park on June 5 and feature famous aircraft of the past, each in dramatic moviestage settings, Lykins said.

Headlight troubles

Drivers of about 38 per cent of the passenger vehicles inspected by the California Highway Patrol in passenger vehicle inspection lanes annually receive warnings because their headlights are out of adjustment.

The blue shield emblems which mark the 3500 official lamp adjusting stations in California are unnoticed by many drivers until they receive the headlight warning. Then the stations' locations become important because the warnings should be cleared at one of them.

The stations, licensed by the California Highway Patrol play a key role in the vehicle safety program of the state. A headlamp misaimed one degree to the right or left will be displaced five feet at a point 300 feet in front of the vehicle. If the misaim is in an upward direction, the lower beam will glare into the eyes of oncoming drivers and the upper beam will be directed far above the roadway. Downward misaim reduces visibility distances to less than normal stopping distances at freeway speeds.

Concern about headlights is not new in California. As early as 1919 the California Motor Vehicle Act, predecessor of the present Vehicle Code, specified that headlamps must be tested and of an approved type before being offered for sale for use upon vehicles on California highways. Compared with modern standards, the adjustment of the 1919 headlamps was relatively simple. An attempt was made to secure adequate driving light to assure visibility and at the same time to minimize the glare in the eyes of approaching drivers at the night speed limit of 30 miles per hour.

When the night limit was raised to 35 miles per hour in 1923, changes were made in lighting requirements.

In 1929, when the Legislature created the California Highway Patrol as part of the Division of Motor Vehicles, it also enacted a law empowering the chief of the Division of Motor Vehicles to designate and supervise official stations for adjusting headlamps and auxiliary driving lamps.

Sahara presents Mathis

When Johnny Mathis cut his first major record, a song called "Wonderful, Wonderful," he probably had no inclination how closely that phrase would describe his future musical success.

And now at the Sahara–Tahoe for a special one week engagement, that phrase is equally proper for the sensational performance he's been presenting nightly in the High Sierra Theatre.

Over the past few years, Mathis has emerged as one of the all–time leading record sellers. He has recorded some 40 albums and at times has had as many as four on the national best seller lists to establish a high for the industry.

Johnny was introduced to music while still a toddler in his native San Francisco where he was the fourth of seven children. His parents, Clem and Mildred Mathis, hired out as a chauffeur – butler – cook team. Clem had given up his song–and–dance career in Vaudeville to feed a growing family, but his enthusiasm for show business never died. He made a special point of teach his children what he remembered from his stage days and, of them all, Johnny seemed the most promising.

When he was 13, Clem took Johnny to Connie Cox, a local voice teacher who had a reputation for helping talented youngsters, regardless of their financial position. Miss Cox auditioned Johnny and immediately took him under her wing. She believed so strongly in his ability that she coached him for the next five years without fee.

During this period, Mathis continued to excel in athletics setting records in track and proving to be somewhat of a basketball sensation. And because of this, Mathis decided to pursue a career as a physical ecuation teacher.

By coincidence, a few months later he was singing at a small club during summer vacation from San Francisco State and a Columbia Records continues to this day.

Johnny has received eighteen gold record albums, the music industry's commemoration for sales passing the one million mark. Most singers receive such treasured discs for single releases. Johnny's were for super–selling albums.

Perhaps one of the most outstanding things about his career is that Johnny Mathis became an all–time great vocalist without succumbing to the countless "new" trends that besiege the music field about as often as the change song interpretations, tremendous range and individual style continue to leave even the most blase critics excited. Without resorting to vocal gimmicks he has reached the four corners of the world with what might best be termed pure "Mathis Magic."

'WONDERFUL, WONDERFUL' – Johnny Mathis, who was a big success in his Sahara Tahoe debut last fall, has returned for a second engagement in the High Sierra Theatre. Mathis is one of the rare vocalists who has remained on top throughout the many changes in musical fads and has a long list of hit records to prove it.

POPULAR REGULARS – Super sound is the best way of describing the fantastic Society of Seven, currently appearing in the Juniper Lounge of Hotel Sahara–Tahoe. From swinging ballads to pop tunes, the group is one of the best in the entertainment business.

Gayle co-stars in theatre

Jackie Gayle, a versatile entertainer equally at home with hilarious stories or machine gun speed ad libs, opens in the High Sierra Theatre of Sahara–Tahoe June 1, for a special one week engagement with singing start Johnny Mathis.

Gayle is a unique entertainer that fits into no general pattern or description. His delivery is quick and clever and original . . . in fact much of it was written by Gayle.

In terms of his philosophy, Gayle believes strictly in bringing laughter and fun to his audiences. No messages, no beating the well–worn drum. Just pure humor.

And at this Gayle is a genius. From the Copacabana in New York to the Tropicana Hotel in Las Vegas, the bright young comedian has been a favorite and adding his super brand of humor to the singing style of Johnny Mathis, creates a show with a perfect balance of music and laughter.

Scene & Unscene

by Sheryl Jensen

Actor Tab Hunter has been at Lake Tahoe this week where he is working on his newest motion picture "Time."

The movie, to be released in September, is being produced by Emit Films Limited and also stars Barbara Nichols, Jack Ackerman and Ann Randall.

Included in "Time" will be scenic shots of Lake Tahoe and the surrounding area as well as interior and exterior shots of Kings Castle at Incline Village where the shooting took place.

Speaking of Kings Castle, the entertainment department has just announced the 1970 lineup for the Camelot Theatre showroom.

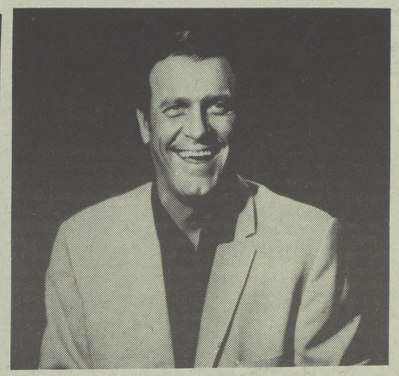
It will be opening July 1 with comedian Buddy Hackett in the spotlight for 10 days. He will be accompanied by Theresa Graves, formerly of "Laugh-In."

Also signed for appearances are Don Adams, July 12-26; Don Rickles, Aug. 5-16; and Tony Bennett, Aug. 26 - Sept. 7. Negotiations are currently under way to sign top stars for summer and fall engagements.

Entertainer Mort Sahl is visiting the South Shore for a few days with long-time friend Ron Erickson of Hotel Sahara-Tahoe. Also visiting in Tahoe and staying at the Sahara is E. Paul Burke, president of Frontier Airlines.

Neil McCann, acclaimed as one of the great bass guitar players in the country today, is currently performing at the newly opened Zephyr Cove Lodge. McCann formerly appeared with the Roger Miller Show.

Zephyr Cove Lodge was opened this season by Gordon Hewson and his son Bill who are advertising the best in wines, dinners and casual, relaxing entertainment. Why not drop by and let them show you what they have to offer?



ADDED TO FIELD - John Ascuaga's Nugget has announced that Lawrence Welk and Eddy Arnold have signed up to play in the 8th Annual Nugget Classic, June 22 - 25. Welk has played in this top-rated amateur tourney before and he has been a strong competitor. This will be the first Nugget Classic for Eddy Arnold. The tourney is played over three championship courses - Hidden Valley and Washoe County in Reno, and Incline at Lake Tahoe. Dionne Warwick opens initial stint at Harrah's

TAHOE DEBUT - Songstress Dionne Warwick, often called "The voice of Burt Bacharach," debuts at Harrah's Tahoe May 28. Among her hits are "Say a Little Prayer for Me," "Alfie," "I'll Never Fall in Love Again," "Walk on By" and "Do You Know the Way to San Jose?"

Dionne Warwick, for the past five years one of the most consistently high-quality singers in the pop field, debuted at Harrah's Tahoe May 28.

Miss Warwick's strong, soulful voice will be heard in the South Shore Room twice nightly through June 8, along with comdian Marty Brill, the Constellations and the Brian Farnon Orchestra.

Dinner show performances begin each night at 8:15 p.m., with the velvet rope lifted for seating at 6:30 p.m. Seating for the midnight cocktail shows begin at 11 p.m.

It was a back-up session for the Drifters in 1961 that started Dionne Warwick's on her musical career.

One of the tunes at the session was "Mexican Divorce," and the writers were the newly joined team of Burt Bacharach and Hal David.

"I did all the Bacharach-David demos for about a year until we hit with my own recording of 'Don't Make Me Over'", recalls the stunning songstress.

The trio gradually rose together to the top of the pop field through the mid-60's. Only in stages did the public become aware that a remarkable new body of music was being written and performed by the same team and singer.

Amazingly, only "Say a Little Prayer for Me" won a gold single for Bacharach-David and Warwick. However, she does have three gold million-selling albums of Bacharach-David songs.

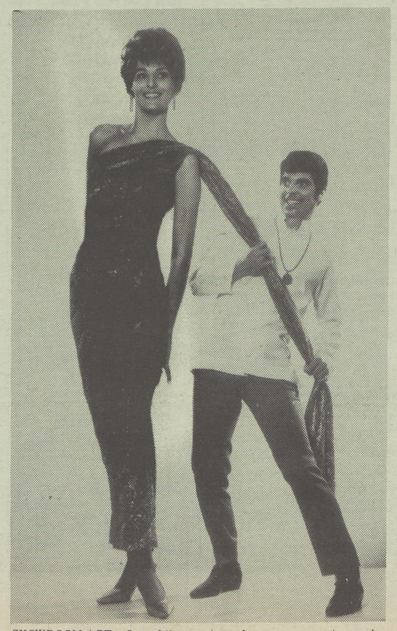
Miss Warwick can be expected to include many Bacharach-David songs, in her show repertoire during her engagement, among them "Promises, Promises", "Walk On By", "Do You Know the Way to San Jose?", "I'll Never Fall in Love Again" and "Alfie."

"By combining an air of sophistication with her church roots, Miss Warwick attains an expressive and versatile vocal approach that is confortable..."

"She further enhances each song with natural and casual movements that capture and echo the vocal mood she creates," praised a recent review in Variety Magazine.

Lawrence Welk and His TV Stars follow Miss Warwick into the South Shore Room for three weeks beginning June 9.

SIGNED FOR CABARET - The Town Criers move into Harrah's Stateline Cabaret for a two-week stint beginning May 28. The quintet will appear through June 10.



SHOWROOM ACT - One of the most popular man-woman teams in show business, Jehry Miller and Micki McChay, opened May 21 in Harrah's Stateline Cabaret and will perform through June 10. The comedy-song team have an impressive background in dramatic and musical comedy shows, motion pictures, TV and nightclubs.

Can't fool kids

During the "junior press conference" segment for the June 20 "NBC's American Rainbow" special, "A Kid's Eye View of Washington," the four youngsters featured in the show were asking questions of President Nixon who, in one of his replies, referred to Thomas Jefferson as "the second President." Quickly, 8-year-old H.B. Barnum III interjected: "Jefferson was the third President, sir." President Nixon complimented the boy for his astuteness.

At Harrah's Edgewood Room buffet, our menu is too good for words.

We put our menu on the line instead. No pretty phrases. No parchment paper. Just tempting buffet selections, right before your eyes. Served in the quiet atmosphere of a fine restaurant.

This weekend, enjoy a candlelit dinner with the menu under glass. And bring the children along. They'll be wide-eyed at all those mouth-watering choices. It's Friday and Saturday, 5 to 11 p.m. Sundays, 4:30 to 10:30 p.m. Upstairs in the Edgewood Room at Harrah's Tahoe.

Harrah's TAHOE

ON HARVEY'S STAGE - Cathy Ryan says to cast an eye in her direction to catch an exciting evening of vocal music. Cathy and her Gents are at Harvey's Resort Hotel through June 8.

GROUP LEADER - Evalani and the South Sea Islanders present authentic Polynesian dancing at Harvey's Resort Hotel, in the Theatre Lounge through June 8.

Beauties dance at Harvey's

One of the most colorful and exciting shows to appear at Harvey's Resort Hotel, South Lake Tahoe, Theatre Lounge, is Evalani and the South Sea Islanders, through June 8.

Also on stage with the South Sea Islanders are the Diamonds, through June 17; Cathy Ryan and the Gents through June 8, and Friends of the Family, through June 4.

Opening June 5 through June 25 are the Coulter Twins, who bring a completely different show to each set.

With bright and varied costuming to enhance the curvaceous and beautiful Evalani, her sister and two other equally attractive Polynesian ladies, the production is the finest of any Island show appearing locally.

By handpicking the best of the young Polynesian musicians and dancers in her acquaintance, Evalani, leader of the South Sea Islanders, has formed an outstanding group who excel in the graceful war and festival chants, along with the exotic and haunting songs of the South Seas.

An exciting number, requiring great skill and balance, is performed by Evalani's younger sister, Luana, as she dances the difficult Tahitian "Boro Boro" on the back of her partner, Tavita. Tavita is the featured male dancer who performs the Samoan "Fire Knife" and "Slap Dance" with fervor and abandon, making the dangerous performance look easy.

The hard working quartet of the Diamonds bring hilarity and smooth vocal sounds to the Theatre Lounge. As one journalist said, "A singing group with good comedy, or a comedy group with good singing - either way they're great."

Cathy Ryan and the Gents feature full, melodic songs and musical stylings in the Theatre Lounge. Fellow performers admire and imitate the musicianship and sound achieved by this very versatile group.

Capable of entertaining every conceivable situation, but most of all, an exciting, fresh and clean-cut show is the Friends of the Family.

Rick Friedman, the leader and arranger for the group, is an accomplished musician in his own right. He plays Spanish and electric guitar and doubles on banjo.

Mark Toscher, the man of many talents, basically plays 6 and 12-string guitar, plus electric guitar. He is the funny man in the group, always keeping the others on their toes and the brunt of most of the others ad-libs.

K. Gheen, the newest member of the group, plays standard upright bass, as well as electric bass. Having integrated himself into the group, his individual effort and unison effort is well recognized in the overall analysis.

The two girls, Joey Mogannam and Jean Gilson, blend in perfectly, be it a unison effort or an individual solo.

Linda, Fifth Winds in Topaz Room

Linda and the Fifth Winds kick up a storm of free entertainment nightly in the Topaz Room of Nevada Lodge, the scenic North Lake Tahoe action center.

Linda Cumbo, star of the quintet, is a St. John's University graduate who began working comedy-music shows in New York and has since appeared in movies and formed the Fifth Winds.

Members of the group combine efforts and talents to produce unique sounds for dancing and listening, with lovely Linda in the lead.

Saring the Nevada Lodge spotlight with Linda and the Fifth Winds are The Topics, in time to make a double bill feature for Memorial Day weekend.

This trio specializes in music and comedy and can switch with the speed of lightening to timely subjects that entertain many age groups.

On the Nevada circuit for the past six years, the trio consists of Rex Wenner on organ, accordion and trumpet; Jim Gredig on banjo, guitar and bass; and D. J. Watson on drums and solo harmonica.

In addition to Linda Cumbo, the Fifth Winds feature organist and leader Buzz Clifford, guitarist Lee McDonald, drummer Davey Sharpe, and bassist Ron Rink. Together they apply improvision but not to the extent of a true jazz group.

With Linda singing lead vocal this group could swing a Christmas carol or turn Ravel's works upside down, which is what makes them exciting and enjoyable.

BELLO'S BEVY - Provocative and spicy dancers tower over Al Bello as they pause during a number in the Al Bello Show. The group will perform nightly in the Casino Lounge of North Lake Tahoe's Cal-Neva Lodge, June 11-29.

Al Bello and girls coming to Lodge

The Al Bello Show will come to North Lake Tahoe's Cal-Neva Lodge June 11 - signaling the start of three weeks of buffoonery, flashy dancing and quick-witted ad libs.

Bello stopped by the Cal-Neva Lodge the other day to size up his new surroundings. The Show will be bigger than ever and can be expected to completely fill the bar-level stage in the Casino Lounge.

More than $6,000.00 has gone into the choreography and costuming for this year's show. Bello has three girls in a rock band, four dancers and one comediene.

He commented: "Audience rapport is number one in importance to me. I usually spend the first 20 minutes of a show 'feeling out' the audience and then present just the kind of entertainment they want. We don't entertain for ourselves."

Preceeding the Al Bello Show will be the Frankie Fanelli Show May 28-31. Fanelli brings a new group and the "now" sound to Cal-Neva's Casino Lounge, doing such numbers as But For Love, Raindrops, Everything Is Beautiful and Al Di La.

A 10-foot silhouette color painting of Robert Goulet, used for Goulet performance publicity many years ago, was sold for $300 at an auction held at North Lake Tahoe's Cal-Neva Lodge. The new owner, who wishes to remain anonymous, sent her chauffeur to get the plywood Goulet.

The May 17 auction drew an ever-changing crowd of about 100 persons, who bought items ranging from wine glasses to bed springs to a pick-up truck. Auctioneer Saul Freedman quickly sold most all of the items no longer needed in the operation of the Cal-Neva Lodge.

Premiere set at Cal-Neva

The Lake Tahoe Premiere Showing of "Marooned," the space adventure movie of three astronauts stranded in space due to a malfunction on their spacecraft, will be in the Celebrity Room of North Lake Tahoe's Cal-Neva Lodge.

The movie, based on the novel by Martin Caidin, will show from May 27 through June 5. Much of the movie was filmed at Cape Kennedy prior to the Apollo 10 mission.

"Marooned" stars Gregory Peck, Richard Crenna, David Janssen, James Franciscus and Gene Hackman.

OPENING IN JUNE - Indonesian singing trio make up the Asian Orchids, coming June 30 to the Cal-Neva Lodge, North Lake Tahoe. The sisters can be compared to the finest of recording sister acts. Accompanied by the Bruce Zarka combo, they will entertain in the Casino Lounge for three weeks.
